Thanksgiving Day On Eastern Shore

Princess Anne, Md., July 3 (AP)—This may be the fourth of July holiday to the rest of the nation, but it's Thanksgiving for Eastern Shore farmers, because they had two "bug-out busters."

"Bug-out busters," be it known, are heavy rains that come in the growing season when the inroads of insect pests are heaviest. The Sho'men explain that the rain causes the plants to grow fast enough to more than balance the insect depredations—hence the term "bug-out buster."

A two-month drought, plus unusually heavy infestations of corn ragworms, fleas-beetles, tomato worms, bean beetles and cucumber hoppers, theatened truck crops on the prolific Eastern Shore before the two heavy rains last week.

The first rain was called a "clod-melter." Farmers said they'd been "rolling the same clods around for two months—doing their cultivating. The second—the "bug-out buster"—was held to have assured the success of the crops.

The drought boomed prices in the area, as produce was virtually non-existent. String beans were selling at $2.25 per bushel hamper, green tomatoes and 75 cents per ⅝ bushel carrier and cucumbers at $2.00 a bushel basket.

Dr. and Mrs. Smith Voluntarily Start For United States

Leave By Motor Car in Custody in Louisiana Officers

Brockville, Ont., July 3 (AP) — Dr. James Monroe Smith, former president of Louisiana State University, and his wife today signed extradition waivers and immediately left Brockville for the United States to face embezzlement charges at Baton Rouge.

Dr. and Mrs. Smith departed at 5:52 p. m. EST accompanied by two Louisiana officials, special investigator Bryan Clemmons and Murphy Roden, assistant superintendent of state police, who came to Canada by plane to get them.

Their immediate destination was

Survivor of Thetis Tells How Crew Tried To Bring up the Ship

Captain H.P.K. Oram Testifies at Public Inquiry

London, July 3 (AP)—A survivor of the Submarine Thetis disaster gave a calm account today of how one after another of the 103 men aboard her tried and failed in efforts to bring up the craft.

Only four of the 103 escaped with their lives.

Capt. H. P. Oram, one of the four who came to the surface with Davis escape devices after the submarine sank off Birkenhead June 1, testified at a public inquiry.

He said the craft plunged to the bottom after water flooded two forward compartments through a torpedo tube and volunteers tried to enter the bow to close the door that somehow caused the disaster.

One was an officer who put on the Davis apparatus and tried to work into the compartments through an escape chamber. The water pressure dizzied him.

Lieut. H. G. Woods, another survivor, then voluntered. A seaman who went with him was overcome by pressure in the escape chamber. Woods tried again with another seaman, but the pressure was too much for him, too.

Throughout the night, Oram went on, officers and men tried to find a feasable plan to save themselves.

Oram's voice broke for the first time when he was asked if there was evidence of panic among the men.

"I would like to make known the very gallant behavior of the men on board," he said, "I saw no sign of panic at any time. When there was any work to be done the men sprang to help. I heard men talking and joking until the foul air caused them to keep quiet. They showed quiet bravery of which memory will live with me forever."

As the hearing began, salvage vessels went to the scene for another attempt to raise and beach the Thetis.

Safe Crackers Get Ready for Fourth

Chicago, July 3. (AP)—Police suspect the dynamite, 450 pounds of it stolen today from a powder magazine, won't be used for a monster Fourth of July celebration.

They think it was stolen for safe crackers, not firecrackers.

Guffey Calls for Election of FDR For a Third Term

Classifies Foes of President as "Tories and Political Ingrates"

Washington, July 3 (AP)—Senator Guffey (D-Pa), classifying anti-administration elements as "tories and political ingrates", called tonight for reelection of President Roosevelt in 1940 with "no ifs, ands or buts, no alibis and no double-crossing."

In a speech prepared for the radio, Guffey represented himself as a "practical politician" who expected to seek reelection to the senate next year on his record as "100 per cent pro-Roosevelt New Deal Democrat."

He said he favored a third term for these reasons:

"Because I am a Democrat.

"Because I am a practical politician.

"Because I am a liberal, and

"Because I am an American."

Really "First Term"

"As a matter of cold political fact," Guffey told his audience, "if Franklin Delano Roosevelt is elected to the presidency again it will be his first real term of office. When you elected Roosevelt in 1932, his

Japanese Cut Off Milk Supply from Tientsin Section

More than 189,000 Persons Affected by Drastic Order

BRITISH PROTEST TO CONSULATE GENERAL

Milk Brought in by Russian Dairymen is Allowed to Spoil

Shanghai, July 3. — Japanese blockading the British and French concessions at Tientsin were reported today to have cut off, in effect, virtually all milk supplies for the foreign areas in which more than 189,000 person reside.

Tientsin's Russian dairymen refused to bring in any milk, save that for the British military hospital. They reported Japanese guards detained some of them at the blockade barriers yesterday for as long as five hours.

In that time the milk spoiled and the Japanese, according to dispatches from Tientsin, dumped it as worthless.

The British were reported to have protested to the Japanese consulate-general.

The supply of milk had been curtailed, along with other foods, in the blockade which started june 14, but this was the first time that it had reached such a low level.

The Japanese-controlled river pilots 'guild added to the inconveniences imposed on the British by refusing to pilot British vessels up the Hai river from Tangku, Tientsin's seaport, between 6 p. m. and 4 a. m

British shipping officials said this would mean a 24-hour delay in some cases.

The stiffening attitude of the Japanese military in North China was regarded as intended to strengthen the hand of Japanese negotiators at a conference which may start today in Tokyo to settle the controversy, which revolves about charges of "anti-Japanism" against the British.

Meanwhile Japanese authorities announced establishment of a "provisional refugee zone" on Nantai Island, opposite Foochow, Fukien province Port Capital which is the target of an impending Japanese offensive.

A Japanese force landed 50 miles from Foochow on Sunday and it was believed capture would be attempted next Friday.

Chamberlain Reports Big Defense Army

LEAPS TO HER DEATH

Eileen O'Connor

Eileen O'Connor, 19, of Clifton, N. J., tore herself from the arms of the man she loved when he rejected her marriage proposal and leaped to her death from the ninth floor of a New York hotel. Alexander Bukocsik said he rejected her plea because he has no prospects of a job. The girl, a cabaret entertainer, is shown in her fan dance costume.

Prime Minister Tells of "Intensive Measures of Military Character" within the City

Berlin, However, Ridicules London Fears and Declares No Defense Steps Have Been Taken

London, July 3 (AP)—Great Britain, France and Poland kept the wires busy today seeking to determine at just what point and exactly how to resist Nazi activity in Danzig.

As the problem was being debated Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons he had "reliable reports" which "indicate that intensive measures of a military character are being carried out in the Free City."

"A large and increasing number of German Nationals," he said, "have recently arrived in the Free City, ostensibly as "tourists,' and a local defense corps is being formed under the name of 'Heimwehr.'

"The government is maintaining contact with the Polish and French governments regarding developments in Danzig."

(Dantzig Nazis admitted organization of a "Heimwehr" composed of men volunteering for emergency service. The men of this new service were veterans of service in Germany in either the black-uniformed S. S. or the military, officials said but asserted they were all Danzig citizens. It was said about 400 had been recalled from Germany in the past few weeks.)

Britain, France and Poland already have agreed they would resist

Reynolds "Joking" In King Interview

Washington, July 3. (AP)—Senator Reynolds (D-NC) said today he was joking when he asserted that he had failed to attend the congressional reception for King George and Queen Elizabeth because the British monarchs could not vote.

The North Carolina Senator added that "garbled newspaper reports" had made it appear that he spoke seriously.

Roosevelt Plans Strategy To Win On Arms Embargo

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 3 (AP)—The quickening pace of developments abroad held President Roosevelt's attention tonight while he considered what strategy the administration might employ to drive through Congress the kind of neutrality legislation it wants.

Mr. Roosevelt scanned a few official documents from Washington today and spent considerable time with his stamp collection in the library of his home.

Beside him, however, was a summer White House telephone through which he was able to keep in touch with Washington or, if need be, American diplomats in Europe. He had no callers.

It was understood the president would outline to Congressional leaders on his return to Washington Wednesday the steps he wants taken on the neutrality issue.

The controversy over neutrality was further complicated Friday when the Huose, against administration wishes, wrote into a neutrality bill a modified arms embargo provision.

Mr. Roosevelt has made it clear he wants action on neutrality legislation this session. Whether reaction abroad to the neutrality votes in the house would strengthen his insistence or whether he might change his mind rather than risk stormy debate in a Senate which already has rebelled against his monetary powers were questions for which there were no immediate answers.

State Teachers' College Demands Federal Assistance for Schools

San Francisco, July 3 (AP) — While the 100th anniversary of the nation's first state teachers' college was being observed today, a demand was made that the federal government provide financial assistance for schools, in recognizing that "Democratic education x x x is the most important phase of our internal program of national defense."

Thousands of teachers from every state in the union heard Reuben T. Shaw of Philadelphia, president of the National Education Association, keynote the organization's 77th annual convention with a plea for "equal educational opportunities for all x x x because x x x Democracy can only function through an educated and enlightened citizenry."

The anniversary of the founding of the first state teacher-education institution — at Lexington, Mass., July 3, 1839 — was observed at a dinner at which Caroline S. Woodruff, past president of the National Education Association and principal of the State Normal School at Castleton, Vt., detailed the history of the movement.

There were three pupils for a one-year course a century ago, she explained, while 100,000 students now are enrolled in similar institutions offering longer curricula. She said the "vast majority x x x of the 1,000,000 teachers in the public schools today are the products of the teachers' colleges of this country."

Shaw, in the principal address at the first general session, said 8,000,000 children of elementary school age had no schools available for them, and another 3,500,000 of high school age were not in school. "Among these groups will be found our future great mass of criminals," he declared.

He cited the report of a government committee recommending federal assistance in establishing and maintaining public schools, and said a measure providing for such aid now was awaiting Senate action.

Mrs. Roosevelt Hears Battle Over Communism During Youth Congress

New York, July 8 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt appeared at the American Youth Congress today in the midst of a battle over Communism which caused representatives of 23 anti-Red organizations to withdraw from the meeting.

Scheduled to address the Congress tonight, Mrs. Roosevelt said she was attending the Senate section today only as an observer, and she made no comment on the heated dispute that split the organization.

A year ago, Mrs. Roosevelt defended the World Youth Congress, in session here and at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., against charges that it was Communist-controlled, and she addressed the American Congress in January of 1938.

Sixteen New York City councilmen have denounced the American Congress as a "Communist Front" organization, and six prominent men, including Gene Tunney, have declared it is dominated by Communists.

Fifty-six New York state legislators in a statement signed also by Secretary of State Michael Walsh demanded yesterday that the Congress condemn Communism, as well as Fascism and Nazism, in its annual resolutions.

An attempt by William O. Ball of Cleveland, O., representing the Young Americanist League, to put through such a resolution led to the revolt today. When his motion was voted down overwhelmingly, Ball shouted, "I call upon all patriots in this audience to follow me out of this room."

Several delegates filed out, and immediately afterward Alfred M. Lilienthal, president of the First Voters League of New York, announced that his organization and twenty-two others among the 135 in the five-year-old, nation-wide congress "are through."

Joseph Cadden, executive secretary of the congress, replied with a statement charging that the dissident group had entered the congress for the sole purpose of breaking it

Party Primaries Likely To Show National Trend

Fourth of States May Have Influence upon Conventions

By KIRK L. SIMPSON

Washington, June 3 (AP)—Party primaries next spring in a dozen states, where voters give direct expression to their presidential nomination preferences, may serve to shape American political destiny in 1940 more than the maneuvering of party captains, national or local.

While only a fourth of the states give party voters a direct voice in picking presidential tickets, virtually half of the delegates to the Republican and Democratic national conventions will be chosen by the primary method. If there is a popular demand for nomination of any man, it should be reflected in those dozen preferential primaries.

Voters To Show Choice

Among the states in which the question of first and second choice for presidential nominations will be put directly, or indirectly to primary voters are Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, in the East; Illinois, Ohio, Nebraska and Wisconsin, in the Middle West; California and Oregon, in the far West, and Florida and possibly Georgia and Alabama, in the South.

That represents a canvas of national party sentiment reaching every section.

There were 1,100 votes in the 1936 Democratic convention and 1,003 in the Republican. That will be about the size of the two conventions next year. With approximately 500 of those votes in each convention in the hands of delegations holding direct instructions from party voters at home, those 1940 primaries could be the dominant factor in both.

Favorite Sons in Field

It is from many of those states that reports of the most intensive activity to attract voter attention come, whether in behalf of Democrats like Garner of Texas or McNutt of Indiana, or Republicans like Vandenberg of Michigan, Taft of Ohio, Dewey of New York.

Some of those states already have "favorite son" candidates, and others may have, but second choice honors voted at the spring primaries will be classed as strong cards in the nomination struggles in convention. Party voter mandates given in primaries have proven more durable in long-drawn out nomination balloting than any other form of instructions to delegates.

The century-old Democratic convention rule requiring a two-thirds vote on the convention to name a presidential ticket was eliminated in 1936.

F. D. R. Needs Only Majority

To obtain a third nomination for himself or to pick some other candidate acceptable to him as a liberal, Mr. Roosevelt needs only to muster a majority of the 1940 convention, if it adopts 1936 convention rules.

There have been whispers that Anti-Roosevelt party factions might make an effort to restore the two-thirds rule as the first skirmish of a "stop-Roosevelt" or "Stop-the-New-Deal" effort. The trend in the 1940 Democratic primaries in the dozen popular preference states could be decisive either way.

Three Trainmen Die Under Mountain Slide

Mount Vernon, Ky., July 3 (AP)—A mountain slide killed three trainmen early today when approximately 6,000 tons of rock and dirt pushed a freight locomotive and ten box cars from the tracks seven miles east of Mount Vernon.

The bodies of Engineer E. J. Weaver, 58, of Spring Lake, Ky., Fireman William Goebel, 50, of Covington, Ky., and Sam Long, 45, of Winchester, Ky., were badly crushed when removed from the locomotive tossed into Round Stone creek by the impact.

The accident occurred as the heavily-loaded train was northbound on the double-track main line of the Louisville and Nashville railroad between Knoxville, Tenn., and Cincinnati, Ohio.

About 200 feet of track was torn up when the rock and dirt fell from the mountainside. All wreckage was expected to be removed by tomorrow.

King Zog and Queen Arrive in Rumania

Bucharest, Rumania, July 3. (AP)—Exiled King Zog and Queen Geraldine of Albania arrived by ship Sunday at the Black Sea port of Constanza enroute to a haven in France.

Their arrival was a surprise since it was announced officially upon their departure yesterday from Istanbul, Turkey, that they were going to Alexandria, Egypt.

King Zog was reported to have ordered the misleading announcement because he feared possible Italian action against him.

Dime In Evidence Convicts Burglar

Albany, N. Y., July 3. (AP)—A dimes worth of evidence here convicted Gerald Neeley, Bristol, Tenn., of second degree burglary and petit larceny.

Neeley denied theft of $19 from Thomas J. Shealey. But when Shealey testified the money contained an 1835 dime, subsequently found in Neeley's possession the jury was convinced.

England, France and Poland Are Ready for Action in the Free City and change in the status of Danzig either from within or without, informed quarters said, and the question now has become one of determining when and how resistance would be applied.

Chamberlain's statement was regarded as significent in view of the fact that article five of the Danzig constitution specifically prohibits any militarization of the Free City without the consent of the League of Nations, under whose protection Danzig exists as a Free City, and considering that Britain and France, with Poland, are members of a league committee of three on Danzig.

Chamberlain refused to answer a question in the House as to whether the "measures" in Danzig were illegal, and this too was regarded as significent. Diplomatic quarters said that one of the questions under consideration by Britain, Poland ad France was use of league machinery to halt Nazi activity in the Free City.

Legality Up To League

The question of whether the Nazi measures were illegal would be determined by the league and it was believed Chamberlain did not therefore want to make a statement at this time.

If the league should establish that these activities were a menace to Danzig, Poland could be either alone or with other league powers to give military protection to the city.

Chamberlain was understood to have discussed the whole Danzig problem with the British ambassador to Poland in a 40-minute talk this morning. The envoy, Sir Howard William Kenuard, is here on an annual leave.

Other developments included:

Old Post For Chamberlain

1. Persistent reports that Winston Churchill would be taken into the cabinet replacing Lord Stanhope as first lord of the admiralty, a post he held during the World War.

2. Chamberlain called upon King George at Buckingham Palace for an audience which was seen as bolstering the Churchill reports. An audience with the king would be necessary before Chamberlain could announce any cabinet changes.

3. Disclosure that the Soviet government has replied to the latest British proposals for a British-French-Russian mutual assistance pact. There was no immediate information as to the nature of the reply.

4. Announcement that Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, British ambassador in Tokyo, had been instructed to inform the Japanese government that "any deliberate ill treatment" of British subjects at the blockaded concessions of Tientsin would imperil the success of negotiations scheduled to start in Tokyo this week on the Far Eastern dispute.

Danzig Nazis Deny Plan To Seize City

By ALVIN J. STEINKOPF

Free City of Danzig, July 3 (AP)—Danzig Nazis, vigorously protesting that "the western Democracies are trying to make an artificial crisis," tonight challenged "British propagandists" to prove that a German putsch had been planned for last week-end.

"Where is this sudden German or Nazi surprise action about which the world was being warned by London?" a high official of the Danzig senate asked.

Prepare for Surprise

"We are making modest preparations against a possible surprise from the Polish border," he continued, "but the most casual observation in this quiet city will show that the Germans of Danzig are manifesting the utmost patience."

Organization of a "Heimwehr" comprised of men volunteering for emergency service was acknowledged.

It also was admitted that men of this new service were veterans of the black-uniformed S.S. or of military service in Germany, but officials contended all were Danzig citizens.

It was said about 400 of them were recalled from Germany within the past few weeks.

During the day the Nazi-controlled Danzig Senate decreed that workers may be mobilized for labor service "vital to the state" in the event of an emergency growing out of the Polish-German tension over Danzig.

Nazi Officials Angry

Nazi officials were displeased by the declaration of British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today that military preparations were being taken in the Free City. They charged that Chamberlain was inaccurately informed.

Regulations of the League of Nations, under whose protection Danzig exists as a Free City, provide that the city may not have military organizations.

Danzig storm troops were kept on an emergency basis, with many men in barracks ready for instant action, but a competent source said there were not more than 3,000 such men on duty in Danzig in addition to police.

Nazis Make Light of Chamberlain Views

Berlin, July 3 (AP)—Nazidom went out of its way tonight to reassure the world that Chancellor Hitler had no intention of forcing the issue with Poland as the fuerhrer suddenly returned to the capital to cultivate Germany's influence in the Balkans.

Officials and the press made sport over those who predicted a Nazi putsch in Danzig yesterday. Hitler and Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop prepared to welcome Prime Minister George Kiosseivanoff of Bulgaria with assurances that they are in full sympathy with Bulgaria's desires for revision of the treaty of Neuilly.

(Under the treaty, signed in November, 1919, Bulgaria ceded small portions of territory on her western frontier to Jugoslavia, and gave up larger sections to Rumania and Greece.)

Hitler's unexpected return—the first since he went to his Berchtesgaden summer home, June 7—indicated the importance which Reich leaders attached to receiving the Bulgarian premier.

One Nazi said the visit was "an indication that more and more it is being recognized that political hopes—not to mention economic ones—can only be realized through collaboration with Germany."

At the same time an authorized spokesman, in one of the clearest utterances any official has given since recent tension over Danzig, said "Germany has no intention of forcing the issue. We have no desire to go against the territorial integrity of Poland. If we had wanted to let the matter come to military action we could have done so any day."

Deny Chamberlain Statement

The spokesman took exception to Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement in the House of Commons today that Germans were entering Danzig. He said the prime minister erred in "several statements."

"There are no German soldiers going into Danzig with tourist skirts on," he said.

"At no point in Danzig's increasing of its defense force is it breaking treaty obligations. In 1933 the police force was diminished. Now, given tension over the free city, it is being enlarged according to treaty rights."

Asked whether Danzigers were being trained by German officers, this official replied: "I have not heard about that."

Poland Prepared To Meet Any Eventuality

Warsaw, July 3 (AP)—Well-informed Polish sources tonight reported Poland "is prepared to meet any situation in Danzig and any action violating the present status of Danzig will be met by counter action."

What preparations were being made remained a secret, however, and the same sources declared there would be no announcement "in advance" of any steps taken.

The Polish government, in close consultation with Britain and France, studied developments in the Danzig situation. Official circles expressed pleasure over Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech in the House of Commons today lauding Poland's "calm courage and self control in the face of grave provocation."

A more definite formulation of Poland's attitude toward Danzig was expected tomorrow when Foreign Minister Joseph Beck returns from a weekend in the country.

Though there was some public nervousness, officials seemed to relax somewhat from tension of the weekend. In this connection, observers believed an effort was being made to keep public opinion calm and the scheduled opening of an American film dealing with German espionage was said to have been postponed.

There were denials of reports that Poland was sending a note of protest to the Danzig senate against purported military preparations in the Free City.

As one Pole put it: "Germany is trying to provoke us and it is getting difficult not to be provoked into action. The fact that the present situation may involve other countries as well as Poland is an important restraining influence."

Ex-Governor Leche To Appear Before Jury

Baton Rouge, La., July 3 (AP)—Richard W. Leche, governor until a week ago, indicated today his readiness to appear before the Parish grand jury which has returned five indictments in its inquiry into financial affairs of Louisiana state university and its former president, Dr. James Monroe Smith.

District Attorney Dewey J. Sanchez said "in all probability" Leche would be summoned.

Leche declare dhe would cooperate with authorities "in any way they ask."

The grand jury will reconvene Wednesday for further examination of witnesses. Smith, his wife, two relatives and Smith's broker have been indicted. The Smiths left Rockville, Ont., late today to return here.

Dr. Smith is charged with embezzling $100,000 in university funds and his wife with "haboring" and "assisting" her husband.

The United States district grand jury, examining witnesses on charges involving WPA activities at L.S.U., also was in adjournment over the holidays.

Acting President Paul Herbert of L.S.U. received and accepted the resignation of George M. Caldwell, building superintendent, "for the best interest of the university."

Herbert said Caldwell expressed the belief it was propo. he receive a two per cent fee on building projects at the school. Caldwell did not know the fee was unauthorized, Herbert declared.

Crisfield Gets Liquor

Crisfield, Md., July 3 (AP)—For the first time in more than 50 years legal liquor was sold in Crisfield today.

A county controlled liquor dispensary was opened under the management of Clarence Justice. Another dispensary is at Princess Anne. Sale of liquor at the dispensaries was legalized in Somerset county at a special election June 6.

3,400 Boys To Start Military Training at Fort Meade Thursday

Fort George G. Meade, Md., July 3 (AP)—A small army of boys—3,400 strong—will move in Fort Meade Thursday to begin a 30-day course at the largest citizens military training camp in the third corps area.

Fourteen infantry companies, two signal companies and a band will be formed among the youths coming here to take the "basic" course for first-year men from Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Representation by states in the area will be: Pennsylvania, 2,459; Virginia, 556; Maryland, 306; District of Columbia, 131.

Directing the youths during their first ten days of military life will be 79 reserve officers of the 320th infantry, Washington. Also assigned to the camp are six chaplains, 11 medical reserve officers, 10 regular army officers and 200 enlisted men.

Commanding officer of the camp is Col. John V. Richards of Washington, commander of the 320th infantry. Lieut.-Col. Joseph A. Jordan is executive officer and Capt. Clifford L. Johnson, adjutant.

Thursday will be "processing" day for the rookies. They will receive their uniforms and equipment, undergo physical examinations and be assigned to quarters in the tent city.

Athletic contests and other forms of recreation will be offered the boys along with their military training. High spot of the encampment will be on visitors day, July 29, when there will be a general review and presentation of awards.

Dr. and Mrs. Smith Voluntarily Start For United States

not disclosed, but it was believed they were headed for Watertown, N. Y., about 10 miles away.

Plane Starts Home

Almost at the same time, the Louisiana state university plane took off from Ottawa for an undisclosed destination with only Pilot J. P. Frame aboard.

The sudden departure of Dr. and Mrs. Smith, carried out with all possible secrecy, followed a deadlock of more than two hours in which Dr. Smith refused to sign an extradition waiver unless he was assured he would not be separated from his wife for the return journey.

The Louisiana officials wanted to take Smith back in the four-seater plane and send Mrs. Smith by train.

Reports emanating from police headquarters, where the Smiths were closeted with Roden, Clemmons, Police Chief W. F. Young and other Canadian authorities, said he refused to budge from his stand.

After two and a half hours of conferring, the waiver papers were signed. Smith and his wife appeared in company of Canadian police officers and quickly were escorted to their own sedan which was waiting outside police headquarters. Roden and Clemmons joined them and they drove off in a hurry, apparently headed for Watertown.

Airport officials at Ottawa said they believed the L.S.U. plane was going to Buffalo since pilot Frame asked for weather reports from that section.

It was considered possible, however, that the plane might stop first at Watertown and take on passengers since there is an airport there. The highway from Brockville to Watertown crosses the thousand Islands bridge.

Roden drove the Smith sedan when they departed and Clemmons was at his side while Dr. and Mrs. Smith occupied the rear seats.

Before leaving the hotel rooms where they had been guarded since surrendering Saturday night, Smith broke his public silence to say he was "innocent of any wrong-doing" and that he was ready to "fight" an indictment charging him with embezzling $100,000 of the university's funds.

"I am going back to straighten up this affair—or to assist in straighening up the affairs," he said in an interview in his hotel room.

After expressing anxiety to get back to Baton Rouge, Smith declared he had no knowledge of the charges against him until he read of his indictment in a Toronto newspaper Saturday.

up. He said, "twelve people who walked out were never in the youth movement before."

Robert Spivack, a member of the National Council, declared that only seven persons on Lilienthal's list of the insurgent organizations represented genuine youth organizations and that "we know all seven individuals are sympathizers of Father Coughlin."

Brooklyn Girl Is So Disgusted with Bund Camp That She Leaves

Andover, N. J., Juy 3 (AP)—A 19-year-old girl who said she went to the German-American Bund's camp Nordland "to learn the qualities of leadership," testified today she left three days later because she "was disgusted at the way people carried on."

Miss Helen Vooros, called as a witness as the Andover township committee resumed its hearing on a request for renewal of the camp's liquor license, said one of the camp leaders "got fresh with me" when she complained of immorality at the camp.

The hearing was adjourned to Thursday at 9 a. m. War veterans and other groups have protested against renewal of the license, charging un-American and pro-Nazi activities at the camp.

Miss Vooros told of making a bund-financed trip to Germany where she "studied national socialism and was taught how to spread propaganda among the youth of the United States."

John C. Metcalf of New York, former newspaperman who joined the bund to obtain information for the Dies congressional committee investigating un-American activities, testified he saw un-American demonstrations and heard evidence of racial and religious intolerance at camp Nordland in 1937.

Guffey Calls for Election of FDR For a Third Term

first term was canceled, vetoed by the Supreme Court.

"When you reelected Roosevelt in 1936, his second term was stolen by tories and political ingrates.

"If the tory politicians and the big business magnates succeed in bamboozling the American people for a third time, in 1940, then there's going to be an upheaval which will sweep away all politicians and all big business. I don't kid myself the American people love their politicians.

"If the people are short changed again by the politicians in 1940, then there won't be any 1944, politically speaking. There will be a dictatorship or Civil war to take the place of shell-game elections between a Republican tweedledum and a Democratic tweedledee, or perhaps I should say between a Republican tweedledum and a Democratic tweedledumber."

During his speech Guffey replied directly to Senator Burke (D-Neb) who had expressed opposition to a third term for the president. Burke, Guffey declared, had "waltzed into office as a result of lip-service to the New Deal."

Guffey cited as one of Mr. Roosevelt's qualifications for office the manner in which he greeted the rulers of Great Britain when they visited this country last month.

Guffey said at one point that most newspapers had refused to publish information about what he contended was a rising popular movement for a third term.

Alleged Kidnapers To Be Tried in Baltimore

Baltimore, July 3 (AP)—Two Michigan convicts, charged with kidnaping John Harrison at Towson four years ago, will be returned to Baltimore county for trial when their mid-west prison terms expire July 17.

Sheriff William Lynch announced he would return Hyman Cole and Julius Eisenberg, indicted for Harrison's kidnaping, with the assistance of Michigan prison guards.

Harrison, the father of seven children, disappeared July 10, 1935, in company with two men, the state alleged. He has never been seen since. Eisenberg and Cole were subsequently convicted in Federal Court for operating an illicit still.

Federal officers told Federal Circuit Court Judge W. Calvin Chesnut at that trial that Harrison had disappeared after he had threatened to disclose whereabouts of the still.

Oldtown "Y" Wins

The Oldtown Young Men's club hung a 7 to 5 defeat on the Keegan's Gassers Sunday at Cumberland. The score was tied until the seventh inning when with two out and the bases loaded Summers doubled into right field scoring the winning runs.

Mrs. Henry E. Payne Medalist at White Sulphur Tourney

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., July 3 (AP)—Mrs. Henry E. Payne, Jr., of Charleston, re-entering tournament competition after five years, easily won medal honors today by turning in a fine 83 in the qualifying round of the women's state golf tournament.

Mrs. Payne bested both of last year's finalists by two strokes as Mrs. Ann Hoblitzell, defending champion, and Mrs. E. W. Stifel of Wheeling, 1939 runner-up, turned in 85's.

Mrs. Payne, who has lived only one year in West Virginia, formerly was widely known in women's amateur ranks in the West. She is a former winner of the junior western title and later qualified for three years in the championship flight of the Western Open.

She is a tall brunette, the mother of two sons.

Although diminutive Mrs. Hoblitzell, twice a champion, took a second place tie in the qualifying round, she still remained a leading contender for a finalist's berth.

Mrs. Payne, in winning the medal, placed herself in a position to threaten the titleholder.

Mrs. Stifel, mother of Fritzi Quarrier who was nine times champion, once again was given a good chance to fight into the runner-up position she held so often, and frequently against her own daughter.

Match play will begin in the woman's tournament tomorrow while the men complete the 36-hole qualifying round.

Three women tied at 97 necessitating a playoff for two positions in the championship flight.

Mrs. I. G. Grettum of Charleston and Mrs. Amos Culp of Huntington won the play-off and Mrs. Ira Eyler of Martinsburg dropped into the second flight.

Sixteen-year-old Barbara Brennan of Clarksburg won her way into the championship flight with a 95. She was a member of the first foursome to complete the round.

Mrs. Marlin Geiger of Charleston took fourth place in the qualifying round with an 89 while fifth place went to Mrs. M. M. Foster of Fairmont with a 91. Mrs. H. D. Everett of Charleston, a former titleholder, held sixth place with a 92.

Bowies Advance In City Mixed Doubles

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Bowie advanced to the semi-finals in the upper division of the mixed doubles for the city championship today by defeating Lawrence Middlecamp and Judy Jones 6-1, 6-2. The Bowies will meet L. E. Van Sant and Mrs. Peyton Brown in a semi-final match this afternoon at 2 o'clock on the Dingle courts.

Four players remain in the men's singles for the city championship. Russell Ponton will play Robert Bane at 10 o'clock this morning, and W. E. Hinkel will clash with Lawrence Middlecamp today at 5 o'clock on the Dingle courts.

Much Speculation Over Final Action On Arms Embargo Measure As Passed House Opposed by Many Senators

Washington, July 3 (AP)—Informed legislators were predicting that Wednesday's meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and whatever decision it reaches on neutrality legislation would be the key to the remainder of the session and the date of adjournment.

From week to week, the committee has met each Wednesday to study neutrality. Each session has brought only a postponement until the Wednesday following. In some weeks, the explanation has been that the committee wanted to wait and see what sort of a bill the House would pass before acting itself.

Now, the House has acted, and the bill it approved is unsatisfactory, not only to the administration but, it turned out today, to the "mandatory neutrality" bloc in the Senate.

The measure enacted by the House would embargo shipments of guns and ammunition to belligerents. Present law embargoes a long list of items useful in waging war. The view expressed by the neutrality bloc was:

"Why stay in session for weeks through the hot weather to pass a bill that is worse than we already have?"

This group is strongly represented on the Foreign Relations Committee. In fact, the week-to-week postponements have been due primarily to its influence. If, on Wednesday, it should again prevail and no action be taken even after the House has passed a bill, that itself, many felt, would be of importance.

It would signify, those of the school argued, that the committee could not be expected to act at any near date. Congressional factions are in a rebellious mood. The prospect of committee action on neutrality, it was felt, would accelerate the adjournment movement.

These predictions, however, took little account of what pressure the administration might bring to bear to get out of the Senate a neutrality bill more to its liking. It has yet to explain its opposition to the House bill.

If neutrality were laid aside and the administration's new $3,860,000 lending program would start on the way of adjournment. Whether the proposal is the subject of an immediate controversy, few thought that regardless of its outcome, final disposition would be long delayed.

Apparently, the administration has the theory that its stabilization fund and power to devalue the dollar could be restored by passage of the neutrality bill now, does not propose to ask for new money legislation.

Meaning of Patriotism

THIS is the Fourth of July, the birthday of the American nation, the day set apart for stimulation of national pride and patriotic devotion.

There is no use blinking the fact that many men and women, the world over, have grown distrustful of patriotic emotionalism. The recrudescence of nationalism in the last thirty years has been the fruitful source of fears and jealousies which menace the world.

Here, as in the face of all the difficult and complex problems of present-day life, there is need for sober and patient thinking. We can never hope to escape from deep-seated human instincts. Rather, we must learn to interpret them, to apply them to larger issues, to harness them to greater ends. We can never afford to ignore the conflicting needs, desires, hopes and purposes of mankind. We must learn rather to compound them, to discover the secret of mutual adjustment, of the "balance of forces" through which Nature itself maintains its equilibrium.

The totalitarian state undertakes to attain stability through uniformity, through the suppression of everything which conflicts with the national will. The result, if it could be achieved, would be stagnation within, and irrepressible conflict without.

The radical social philosophies are open to the same fundamental objection. They would compel the whole world into one pattern—an attempt as hopeless as that of Canute to forbid the tide. There can simply be no thoroughfare in that direction.

Every man has a right to his pride in his work, in his triumphs and achievements. Nothing short of this will keep him up to his best. So every nation has a right to its history, to the glory of its past, to the hope of its future. Every race has a right to its culture, its art and literature, its race soul.

This does not mean that one is right and all the rest are wrong. It does mean that life is bigger than the point of view of any man or race of men, and that only through mutual give-and-take can its highest destiny be achieved.

This is equally true in the field of economic and industrial interests. The need of the world today is that we shall be big enough to work together, to subordinate our particular interests to the welfare of the whole. The patriot is one who through his very pride in his country seeks to enlarge its contribution to the common tasks of civilization.

Air Police

NO SOONER do cities enlarge their crime equipment than something new comes along requiring further advance steps.

Plans have been made, for example, by New York city police officials for the operation of an aviation unit of two airplanes and twelve mechanics and pilots. The city operated an aviation unit a few years ago, but it was abandoned. Growing need for this service has prompted its restoration.

Contracts already have been awarded for the two airplanes, one an amphibian costing $19,000 and the other a land plane costing $14,000. Mechanics and pilots of the unit, who have had previous air experience, are completing preliminary training periods at present.

New York city police officials said that duties of the new air patrol will include controlling air traffic at airports as well as automobile traffic. The airplanes will be fitted with two-way radio sets.

Meanwhile many cities haven't as yet caught up with radio service.

A Threat to America

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S $3,860,000,000 "LENDING" PROGRAM is the most dangerous proposal ever made by a chief executive of this nation.

It is a deliberate attempt to substitute for our historic free economy the type of state socialism which has come to fruition in a totalitarianism that has crushed both political and economic freedom throughout the greater part of the continent of Europe.

It is a ruthless betrayal of our American birthright of individual initiative and free enterprise for selfish partisan ends. It is a brazen sacrifice of the American ideal of economic freedom on the altar of foreign idols in a hazardous attempt to perpetuate the New Deal.

Desperate fear of retribution in 1940 for the reckless squandering of billions of the taxpayers' money, without either stimulating business or providing jobs for some 11,000,000 unemployed, has forced the president to tear aside the veil of sham and hypocrisy which has shrouded the discredited shibboleth of "spending for recovery."

Out of a bankruptcy of sound economic ideas comes this rule-or-ruin disguised spending program, with the sinister proposal that it "be adopted as a permanent policy of the government."

Therein lies its real menace. All the rest is just the familiar New Deal mixture of deceit and misrepresentation.

For instance, it is represented as a "lending" program. It is merely the old rapacious spending wolf dressed up in sheep's clothing; an attempt to make spending appear as lending, to circumvent the national debt limit, to make even more misleading and difficult to understand an already dishonest and confusing budget.

The projects sketchily outlined are represented as "self-liquidating." The people also are told that they will not conflict with private business. That is a contradiction in terms. If they are self-liquidating, they will return a profit. If they do, they compete with private business. If they do not, they are not self-liquidating.

The people will not forget that some of the old New Deal "self-liquidating" agencies are deep in the hole of debt and that the taxpayers will have to dig deep to get them out. It is significant that it is a Democrat, Senator Byrd, of Virginia, who is demanding a thorough investigation.

In the new spending proposals, the mountain has labored and brought forth a mouse. But it is a mouse as dangerous as any rat which ever spread the bubonic plague.

Trailing Far Behind

HOLDING that we should be far better off than we are today had our national recovery been aided instead of blocked with crazy experimentation, Frank Gannett, newspaper publisher, has pointed out that other nations which followed the road of encouraging private enterprise have far greater prosperity than we have.

"During the past four years," Gannett stated, "twenty-one nations with 600,000,000 population had a total cumulative deficit of only $312,000,000; while the United States, with one-quarter as many people, added twelve billion dollars—forty timse as much—to its debt. These nations have had more prosperous agriculture, two to four times as much building per capita, higher employment, more profitable business without endangering solvency by growing debt. These nations did not undermine private enterprise by government lending and spending."

We should be much better off than they are, Gannett averred, because our national wealth is greater, we have the productive capacity, we have efficient management and ambitious workers to give us, predicted on the century-old rate of growth, an annual income of $105,000,000,000.

But, after six years of fruitless experimentation, the New Deal has left us with a shrunken income of $65,000,000,000—forty billions of lost income. That, Gannett said, would give every farmer $800 a year more, every non-agricultural gainfully employed worker an increase of wage or salary of $365 a year, eleven billions for increased taxes, rents, interest and dividends; and there would still remain a thousand dollars a year each to give employment to ten millions now jobless without burdening the national treasury.

It seems high time to get started on the obvious track.

The Piano Recovers

THE SWAN SONG of the piano in the home was sung too soon. The piano is making a comeback that should wring apologies from observers who, with increasing pessimism during depression years, have told how reproduced music has so lowered esteem for the piano that families have abandoned them upon moving. First the phonograph and then the radio were said to have done this music maker of the home to death.

Piano shipments in May were nearly eighty per cent more than during the month last year and shipments for the first five months of 1937, normally dull in the industry, were ninety per cent more than in the first half of 1938, with a strong back-log of orders.

Motor car and radio manufacturers introduce progressive new models to stimulate buying and the piano makers may have learned something from that system, but it must be true also that the age-old love for the instrument of Chopin, Liszt, Rubinstein, Rachmaninoff and Paderewski is reawakening.

The Lynching Record

THE SEMI-ANNUAL REPORT from Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, comes to hand showing that there were four lynchings during the first six months of this year.

This is three more than the number for the first six months of last year, in which only one mob murder occurred, and the same number for the like period of 1937.

As usual, the lynchings this year occurred in a southern state, Florida having had two and Georgia and Mississippi each one.

Meanwhile the crusade against this form of murder goes patiently on.

The Fluttering Curtain

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Marshall Maslin

I pass down a little street off on the edge of town, a little street of poor houses. . . . Not houses that have pleasant gardens around them, or well-tended lawns that the man of the house trims of a Sunday morning or waters after supper of a summer night. . . . But shabby little houses that need paint, that need some human pride about them to make them what they ought to be. . . . Little rented houses that have gone down in the world, or were never high in the scale of a man's pride.

And as I pass that way, I see a man stop in front of one of those houses and scan the number to make sure he has the right place. . . . Just an average, regular fellow, with a kind face. . . . He has one of those leather folders in his pockets and it is fat with unpaid statements. He has been sent here to collect a debt.

He may get the money, but I'm thinking as I pass that he will probably not.

He swings open the rickety gate and walks up the cement path, climbs the stairs to the little front porch, rings the doorbell and waits. . . . I don't stop, but I walk slowly. And what I expected happens. . . . The shades of that front room, the parlor, are drawn. I see one of them move slightly, and I know it is not the wind. It is a woman looking to see if it is a bill collector. She moves the curtain, sees the man—he doesn't see her—and turns to hush the children and tell them to be very quiet until the man has gone away, until he has rung again, walked around to the back, knocked on the kitchen door, and gone away again.

The collector is a decent fellow. I need not look at him twice to know that. But he has the toughest job in life, trying to collect a just debt from someone who hasn't the money—from someone for whom he is a Deadly Enemy.

And because I happened to be there at that instant, I saw a ghastly thing: I saw a window curtain flutter and I knew a human spirit was crouching in fear . . . and I longed to be far away from there, as far as wheels or wings or the human spirit could take me. . . . Because I am a coward about such things and cannot harden myself to all of life.

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

A new mind-reading swindle engages the attention of the police in several large cities. An easy-mannered stranger accosts you, in a bar, perhaps, and rigs the ensuing conversation so that, eventually, you are willing to bet ten dollars to fifty dollars that a second man—a stranger to you—whom you will call on the phone cannot tell you what particular object you are thinking about.

It's the simplest piece of skullduggery in the world. The man who has approached you easily draws from you what object you have in mind. All right, he says, now you call my friend, Mr. Tour, a curiously gifted chap who is a wonderful mind-reader, and Mr. Tour will tell you promptly just what you have in mind. You call Mr. Tour and promptly he tells you that you are thinking about an automobile, and he names the make of a car. The answer is that "Tour" is a code which, in itself, means a certain make of motor car—just as thousands of other code words stand for thousands of other objects.

This so-called mind-reading and fortune-telling flourishes best in hard times. It takes 125 million dollars a year out of American pockets. Deep in the memory of the race, forgotten only in times of security, are all the ancient speels and incantations. These petty swindles, along with a marked increase in panhandling, seem to be symptoms of the times.

To Be Suppressed

Street begging has become such a nuisance in New York, as in doubtless other big cities, that Mayor LaGuardia is determined to suppress it. It's a $15,000,000-a-year racket, and at least 10,000 fakers are soliciting the money of passers-by.

The case which really raised the Mayor's temperature was that of a blind musician who had the nerve to refuse to quit begging unless the city's Welfare department granted him a relief allowance of $125 a month. He said he always made this much with his fiddle and his tin-cup, and he couldn't see any reason to take a cent less.

Thousands of these fellows are said to prefer begging to going on relief. It gets them about and keeps them out in the fresh air. The truth is that panhandlers and moochers are now organized in guilds, associations and clubs, with officers and all the trimmings, and with the city divided into districts, at certain hours, for specialists in the gentle art of cadging.

There hasn't been anything like it since I was a young reporter. In those days, there was a veritable social register of the Panhandle: an Almanach de Gotha of Beggardom. That was back in the years of felicity, when most everybody with a reasonably well-behaved conscience was happy and fairly prosperous.

In recent years, of course, beggardom has lost all of its erstwhile exclusiveness. The Four Hundred of the floppers and the plingers, the Black Hoods and the High Heels, have been overrun. There were aristocrats of the fraternity in those days, like Kid McCoy (not the old time fighter but a beggar and satchel thief) who was the picture of a plutocratic Wall Street broker—fur-trimmed overcoat, silk tie, spats and all the necessary scenery.

Couldn't Take a Joke

There was Klondike Gene Dawson whose hunting ground was the old Waldorf, the Big Spanish, who worked the Latin-American hotels around Union Square, posing as a Venezuelan or Honduran patriot on his uppers. Once he organized a juanita to turn out Castro, dictator of Venezuela, but lit out with the cash collections before arms could be bought. He was never heard of again, and the story went he was knifed by real Venezuelan patroits who couldn't take a joke.

Prince Rudolph was an Austrian high-class beggar, the high-roller of the fraternity. Gold Tooth English and Hoboken Dick were mopers, who lounged along Broadway, moving sentimental hearts with their tales of woe. Probably the most interesting of all was Charley Berkowitz—Blind Berkowitz—a flopper or fake cripple who flopped down on the sidewalk at Herald Square with his cap or tin-cup. He really went blind after years of "throwing up" his eye-balls, so that only the whites showed, simulating blindness, and Nature wouldn't stand for it. She struck him really blind. But when he died he held the deeds to three apartment houses and had bank-books showing deposits of more than twenty thousand dollars in cash.

Festive Occasions

Once a year these aristocrats of the profession held a celebration in downtown New York, a New Year's Eve party in the back room of Diamond Dan O'Rourke's dump, and there they brought their Black Hoods and their High Heels (the old women and the young women who panhandled for them when they were too tired to work), their particular favorites in the profession. On these festive occasions, the Undertaker, with his long, sorrowful face and his suit of solmn black gave an annual sermon on the vicissitudes of life and the imminence of death.

It was then that Fiddling Dan, with a stolen Stardivarius, played like an angel and the dancers footed it all night long, while champagne flowed in torrents and cascades. Even politicians did not disdain to drop in and pay their respects to the leaders of beggar society. They have passed, these colorful rascals, these aristocrats of the guild. Hard times have submerged them and their like in a new horde of the importunate who lack their particular talents. — Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Controversial Viewpoints on Monetary Powers Shown in Answers by Experts

EDITOR'S NOTE: Congress has been quarreling over presidential dollar devaluation powers, the price of silver and whether the treasury should have authority to operate a $2,000,000,000 foreign exchange stabilization fund. Here are some questions and the answers of monetary experts as to what it all means).

— x —

Washington, July 3. (AP)—What effect will there be on business and the average consumer from expiration Saturday of President Roosevelt's power to alter the value of the dollar?

None at all immediately. The dollar is unchanged and the consumer can go to a store and buy with his dollar just what he could last week.

How about in the long run?

Makes Investors Timid

That is what the argument is about and is the guestion the Senate has been debating preliminary to a vote Wednesday on renewing the powers. Those who want to take the power away contend that Mr. Roosevelt's having it makes investors timid about putting their money into productice enterprise, consequently slowing business and creating unemployment.

On the other hand, the administration asserts it is a necessary weapon because foreign countries may devalue their currencies, enabling them to sell goods cheaper, take away the United States markets for exports, and hence injure business and employment in this country.

What is the gold value of the dollar now?

One thirty-fifth of an ounce of gold. In other words, thirty-five dollars will buy an ounce of gold.

Has Mr. Roosevelt ever used his devaluation power?

In 1934 he revalued the government's gold holding from $20.67 to $35 an ounce, reducing the dollar's theoretical gold value to 59 per cent of its former value.

Price Raising Alleged

For one thing, it brought the dollar and foreign currencies nearer to their historical relationship in exchange. It was argued, too that it had the effect of raising commodity prices but this is disputed.

How much could Mr. Roosevelt reduce the gold value of the dollar under the bill pending in the Senate?

To fifty percent of its value before his previous devaluation order.

What about the stabilization fund?

The treasury uses it to buy and sell dollars and the currencies of foreign countries on the exchanges in an effort to keep them in a stable relationship.

Trade Flow Help Seen

What good does that do?

The theory is that it promotes free flow of trade. For instance, an English merchant desiring to make purchases in this country likes to know that he can get the same number of dollars for one pound sterling next week that he can today. Gold figures in this, too, because it is the medium of exchange and how much gold each currency will buy determines the relationship between two currencies.

What is the argument over the price of silver?

The silver purchase act of 1934 fixed the legal value of silver at $1.29 an ounce and directed the treasury to purchase silver until it reached that price or its relation to gold in the treasury's holdings reached one to three. The world price now, however, is only about thirty-eight cents an ounce. The treasury has been buying silver produced in this country at a higher price fixed by presidential proclamation, the past eighteen months at 64.64 cents an ounce compared with 77.57 cents in 1937. Senators from silver states contend the present price is too low, want to fix it by law at about seventy-one cents at least.

Silver Buying Controversial

Why should the United States buy foreign silver?

That is another controversial question. Opponents of it contend the United States has been made a dumping ground for the world's unwanted silver and that the silver policy is undermining confidence in the nation's currency both at home and abroad; advocates assert it has stimulated buying power in half a dozen countries, enabling them to buy American-made goods with the dollars they get for their silver.

Where Will It Stop?

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

In considering the president's proposal to distribute $3,860,000,000 in public works and foreign loans, it is well to bear in mind that this would be in addition to all other lending and spending schemes, in operation or in contemplation, and the $1,650,000,000 to be raised by the new tax bill.

It is sobering to consider the fiscal picture and what it means to the tax payers. Here are the items:

$3,860,000,000 just proposed by the president to be loaned out for public works, railroad equipment, rural electrification and foreign purchases of American goods;

$1,000,000,000 in federal loans to small business;

$1,735,000,000 for relief;

$800,000,000 in increased borrowing for the Federal Housing Authority;

$400,000,000 for rivers and harbors projects;

$338,000,000 for farm benefits;

$2,000,000,000 for the Thomas federal currency plan.

Lumped, these proposals contemplate the use of $10,133,000,000. And they are, of course, in addition to the regular expenditures of government.

Not all of this lending and spending, we assume, will be authorized. But even without the president's new program, it is certain that enough will win through to add tremendously to the public debt, hence to the taxes of the American people.

These sums of money are so large as to be beyond ready comprehension. When it is borne in mind, however, that even at their present high level, taxes cover only a small part of the public spending, it is easy to see what the country is in for.

Clearly, one of two things must happen if the thing keeps on for much longer. Either there will oe a complete collapse of the federal fiscal structure with wholesale repudiation and all that that entails, or the government will take over the business of the country and we will have a collectivist economy.

If we are to avoid these evils, it will be necessary not only to call a prompt halt to the whole extravagant procession, but to retrace our steps to a drastic curtailment of governmental activity and governmental spending.

It now looks like only a complete clean-up in the election of 1940 can accomplish this major operation.

Third Termites Have Wrong Idea

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

HUGH JOHNSON

Washington, D. C., July 2.—The is a too easy assumption in t strategy of the Third Termites th they can dominate the Democratic party by threatening to pull out and take some pressure groups with them—organized labor, the farmers and the unemployed. Their formula on that is:—"They have no place else to go." Thus some, like Mr. Ickes, have said that if, on such a split, they were not elected in 1940 a the Republicans were, it would sure their triumphant return 1944.

The bug under that chip is th these groups do have some pla "else to go." Both the farmers a organized labor in the main a traditionally Republicans. Repu licans have recently demonstra an ability for out-promising e the Third Termites and have ba ed their promises with their vo in Congress. Meyersdale To Have Community Picnic Today

Fourth of July Event Will Be Held at the Fair Grounds

Meyersdale, Pa., July 3 — Burgess C. Reich, general chairman in charge of arrangements for the community picnic to be held at the Meyersdale fair grounds Tuesday, reports everything in readiness for the big event.

The exercises will start with a concert by the Community Band, under the direction of Nat LaCavera, beginning at 11 a. m.

The address of welcome will be delivered by the Rev. John C. Litle, pastor of the First Methodist church, and the guest speaker for the occasion will be Prof. Fred Hare, Jr., former supervising principal of the Somerset township consolidated high school.

Vacation School Closes

The closing exercises of the Daily Vacation Bible school which was held in the Church of the Brethren during the past two weeks, was held this evening, and an interesting program was rendered under the direction of Miss Bernice Moser, superintendent of the vacation school and her corps of assistants. A pageant, entitled "Seekers All," in which the outstanding features were the music by the entire school and a pantomime of the life of Joseph by the juniors and intermediates, an opportunity was given to inspect the work done by the students of the school, which was on display in the rear of the sanctuary.

Canonico Funeral

Funeral servics for Carmella Canonico, whose body was brought here from the sanatarium at Hamburg, where she died of tuberculosis, were held yesterday morning in SS. Philip and James Catholic church, the Rev. H. T. Miller officiating, with interment in the church cemetery. She was aged eighteen years, and was a graduate of the local high school, class of 1938. Surviving are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Canonico, of Meyers avenue, and these brothers and sisters: Tom, James, Mary, Carol Canonico, at home, and Mrs. Rudolph Delay, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Marriage Is Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, Grant street, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Smith, to Edward Cecil Keefer, of Mance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Keefer, of Mance, near Elkins, which was solemnized in Zion Lutheran church, June 24, by the Rev. H. K. Hilner. The attendants were Miss Ella Tayman, Pittsburgh, friend of the bridegroom, and Robert Smith, Jr., brother of the bride. Only the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom witnessed the ceremony. The bride and groom both are graduates of the local high school, the former with the class of 1936, and the latter with the class of 1934.

Following the wedding dinner served at the Smith home the couple departed on their honeymoon tour which will comprise towns and cities in the state of Ohio.

Celebration Planned

The Salisbury Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor a celebration in the municipal park, Salisbury, Independence Day. A program of sports and contests has been arranged, including two baseball games in the afternoon, followed by a street parade of visiting fire companies and bands, closing with a dance, band concerts and an unusually fine display of fire works in the evening. A number of people from Meyersdale and vicinity will attend the evening festivities.

Paul D. Clutton and family, South Orange, N. J., who spent several days visiting at the Olinger home on Grant street, left for Slippery Rock, their ancestral home, but will return Wednesday for a more extended visit with friends here.

Wings of Youth

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

THAT MOMENT of indecision, as she stood on the dark steps of the lodge to which Lynn Rhodes had taken her, became an eternity to Sarah Anne. She put out her hand, unconsciously, to steady herself.

She did not know much about Corrinne's recent activities. But then, why should she imagine that Corrinne was the girl in the picture hat and the white coat who had married this Robin-Lynn Rhodes? Didn't every other girl in America have a hat and coat like this?

But all of the time, in her heart, she knew that it was Corrinne. Poor, hurt, baffled Corrinne. Willing to undergo anything to make a dramatic gesture before Bob Ransom!

When had she done it, if she had done it? Corrinne had been home every night.

Why had this man wanted to involve her sister, and why had he taken her, Sarah Anne, as easily as of old, today?

Now she knew that she must get away. To be found here would tie Corrinne into the picture even more than she already was. But that hat and coat—they had tags—there was the name of a milliner in the hat and a dry cleaner in the coat. She must rescue them before she left.

She felt curiously guilty. If she had not come away today she would not have brought the testimony of Corrinne's coat and hat into this mixup. Maybe she still should speak to the policemen.

She heard heavy steps coming up. She stepped back, crouched behind a pillar, waited for the flashlight to find her. It did not see her.

The man went downstairs.

"He spoke to the others. "I think we'll spread out around the house and form a cordon to work in. The chances are that this man who called won't go near the house, thinking we've arrived. He'll imitate a mocking bird or cricket and expect to do some rescue work from witnout. Let him discover a clear coast and get in the house."

"Oke, boss," another voice agreed, and Sarah Anne heard the men going out.

Now her chance had come. She would crawl down, seize the hat and coat, and come back. But she must leave quickly, for these men would miss the garments and go in pursuit of her. She would have to try that chute.

She took off her shoes, went carefully down the stairs, seized the clothing, put on the coat and hat. It would be awkward, but she must swim in them. She must not leave them around. She went into the bedrooms. No, there was no slide opening from a window here, nor here. Yet this was the part of the lodge that faced the lake. Ah, here it was!

She raised the window. She tried to look below to find watching shapes. She sat down on the window sill. She must wait until an alarm sounded for the coming man before she tried to get away. Otherwise, attention might be attracted to her.

It might have been ten minutes, it might have been an hour, or maybe it was most of the night. Afterward she didn't know. She only recalled that she sat in the window for a long time and that when her nerves were taut as violin strings and her heart was beating hysterically, she heard a commotion below.

A man's voice was raised in rage and surprise. It strung together a stream of oaths. There was a familiarity about them. In her surprise she almost started down the slide. This was the man who was an enemy, the one whom Lynn had said was a reporter! But he seemed to be an accomplice—

She heard Lynn's voice. He had come out of the stupor the whiskey had produced. The police apparently had bound him before laying in wait for his friend, or his enemy.

"What about the dame?" an officer asked.

"Yes, what about her?" Lynn's voice was still amused.

"There was one here."

"There have been many women. Sorry, chief, we can't offer you any tonight."

"This is no time to be foolish, Robin. We want the skirt. Speak up. Where is she?"

Sarah Anne could imagine the way that Lynn cocked his dark eyebrows and the ghost of a provocative smile that made his mouth laugh.

"Here are her wraps—" The officer's voice ended in a shout. "Say, there's something going on around here. They're gone!"

Now was the time to go down that chute. Quickly, before the police came. Sarah Anne prayed swiftly, just one word flung to the dark sky and the cold night. Then she let go. Down, down, down. She struck the water. It was icy, but she did not recoil. She began to swim, trying to pull the wet skirts above her waist. Maybe if she floated—

But the little lake was rough. She must make the crossing as best she could. Once she turned over. Far back on the shore she saw a light flash in an upstairs window at the lodge. She had left just in time.

The hat blinded her. She slipped it over her head, letting it ride on her back, held by the demure black velvet ribbon.

She was shaking and weary when she reached the road and she had no idea where she was or how to get home. Moreover, to appear at this hour in such a condition would be too shocking for the town.

But couldn't she say a boat had upset? What boat? Where? And why? The story might go for a stranger, though.

The signboard at the crossroads showed that she was much nearer Berryville than she had thought. A milk truck, lumbering along, stopped. A man leaned out.

"Can I give you a lift?"

"Oh, if you would! I fell in a lake and I lost my money."

"Hop in. Better wring out your skirts."

He asked no questions. Just chatted away companionably. "Where to?" he said when they reached the limits of the town.

She gave the address of the church. That was safe enough. Anyone might get out at a church.

She waited until the truck had gone its heavy way, then glanced up at the church clock. A quarter of four! It ought to be day after tomorrow at the least.

She would get in silently. Fortunately her parents never stayed up to watch for her. That was very good—

A tall shadow fell across her path. She moved back. Then she let out a single cry: "Bob!"

"Sarah Anne!"

She was going to faint, she knew, but even while she struggled for balance long, strong arms caught her, held her.

"Sarah Anne, dearest, where were you? What is it? What happened?"

He was kissing her again, and she saw neon lights, skyrockets, Roman candles, penny fire crackers going up in a glorious flare. Of course she was dreaming, she knew. She was out of her head a little. This wasn't happening. But since it was a nice dream, so much better than reality could bring her, she raised her lips and kissed him back.

Then she opened her eyes. It was true. She was being supported by Bob, and her clothes were heavy and wet, and the silly hat dangled on her back.

"I look terrible, don't I?" she asked with characteristic candor.

"You look beautiful," he answered, quietly, devoutly. "If you feel the way about me that I do about you, we're going to stop playing hide-and-go-seek. Oh, Sarah Anne, sweet—"

Then she remembered. "Bernice?" she asked fearfully.

Pearly White Hopes

By HELEN FOLLETT

UNLESS the teeth are like white pearls, beauty's hopes are crushed. Give them fastidious care. Don't delay the pilgrimage to the dentist's office, no matter how you dread to face his drills and pickaxes. See him twice a year even though nothing may be wrong with your biters. He may discover cavities which, treated early, will cause no discomfort.

Many women who fling money for grand drygoods and have sessions at the beauty shop neglect the semi-yearly visit to the dentist. Penny wise and pound foolish, they are. No matter how carefully they brush and scour their teeth every day, tartar is bound to collect. Little chalky barnacles form between teeth and gums, causing the gums to recede and impair the health of the teeth.

After the brushing the mouth should be rinsed to flood away foreign particles that have been dislodged. If the gums are pale, use a salt solution for this purpose. Massage the gums with fingers that have been dipped in a dentifrice.

Don't forget that teeth are dependent upon a varied diet. They need calcium, and you'll get it from the milkman. A quart of milk a day is good for a lot of beauty ills. Use a small toothbrush with bristles set in groups; it makes a more thorough job of cleansing than a larger brush. Sweep away from the gums, roll the brush so that the bristles will pass along the sides of the teeth.

DEANNA DURBIN ... proper attention makes her teeth glisten.

The girl with the long nose must be careful about the tilt of her hat. The halo hat, set on the back of her tete, brings the long nose right out in the open, accentuates its contour.

The long nose requires that the hat be brimmed, placed on a level or slightly to one side.

A powder slightly darker than that used on the other portions of the human portrait will shadow the nose somewhat. One can resort to plastic surgery, have a little trimming down done, but that is a beauty indulgence that is fairly expensive. Only a surgeon who is of good standing in the medical profession should be trusted with the remodeling job.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

FALSE CARDING AN ART

VERY FEW people understand the fine art of false carding. Most people consider it a false card when they play an ace while holding the K, or a Q when holding the J, and those plays usually are meaningless. Sometimes the opportunity arrives for the fine artist to play high from some other combination and thereby deliberately mislead an opponent into misreading a situation in some very specific way.

	♠ A K 8 6 2 ♥ 10 3 ♦ Q J 6 5 ♣ A J
♠ Q 10 ♥ A 9 5 4 ♦ 10 9 2 ♣ 10 8 7 2	W. N. E. S.	♠ 7 4 3 ♥ K 6 ♦ A K 8 4 3 ♣ 9 6 5
	♠ J 9 5 ♥ Q J 8 7 2 ♦ 7 ♣ K Q 4 3

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

This was a hand played in the recent Allentown, Pa., tournament of the American Contract Bridge league. Game was made on it at nearly all tables. Usually the bidding was: North 1-Spade, East 2-Diamonds, South 2-Hearts, North 2-Spades, South 3-Spades and North 4-Spades.

At the table where the game was defeated, East led the diamond K and, for some reason, shifted to a low heart from the K. Horace M. Byrnes, of Harrisburg, in the West, took this with the A and returned another heart to the K. A club was led to declarer's A and the latter laid down the spade K.

There was where the fine play was made. Mr. Byrnes played the Q on the K. The declarer naturally now placed East with a holding of four spades to the 10, which could not be captured except by a finesse of the 9. When declarer tried this the 10 won, beating the contract. Asked how he felt for beating the contract, Mr. Byrnes said: "I was very happy, like unto Ferdinand the Bull."

siness Reports Encouraging, but Traders Are Cautious

By FREDERICK GARDNER

w York, July 3. (AP)—A rise in a shares provided today a mea- display of stock market fire- s while trading set the slowest for a full session in seventeen ars.

Sandwiched between the week- nd recess and the Fourth of July oliday, transactions dropped to 35,340 shares, the lowest since a ilar Monday before independ- nce day in 1922.

Cautious investment buying on hopes of business improvement in the next year or so again seemed to account for the most of the gains. p 1 to about 2 at the close were merican Telephone, American can, llied Chemical, U. S. Gypsum and ustrial Rayon. The last stock ned on a block of 4,000 shares.

Leading steel shares sold fraction- lly higher despite the drop in the ustry's operating rate this week 5 per cent of capacity from last week, mostly ascribed to owns for the usual Fourth of vacations. Business reports on whole held out hopes for sus- ined industrial operations the est of the year.

The Associated Press composite rice of 60 stocks was up .1 at 45.6. Up a trifle in a listless curb mar- were American Gas & Electric, ockheed, Nehi Corp. and N. J. the American Cyanamid "B" and ulf Oil shaded lower. Turnover 4,000 shares was the smallest in years or more and compared 94,000 Friday..

"Mutiny On the Bounty" Returns to Maryland

"Mutiny on the Bounty," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sea classic that opened yesterday at the Maryland Theatre, is a picture that must take the highest place of all sea dramas converted to the motion picture screen.

Three stars top a notable cast of more than fifty featured players but the outstanding star of all is the sturdy little square-rigger, "H. M. S. Bounty," which figured in one of the most dramatic chapters of sea drama more than 150 years ago.

"Mutiny on the Bounty," a crowning production achievement of the late Irving G. Thalberg, is the sea adventure immortalized in the sensational book of Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall.

It is the true story of a scientific expedition of a group of men who rise in mutiny against the tyranny of their captain and who are eventually tracked down by the long arm of England's sea law and led back to an ignoble death on a yardarm.

Charles Laughton, as Captain Bligh, far surpasses any performance of his spectacular screen career. He gives the role of Bligh the breath of life that only the original Bligh could give it.

Clark Gable appears as the leader of the mutineers, Fletcher Christian, and through his characterization climbs one more notch higher as the most popular male star of the films.

She Can Take It--But She Can't Dish It Out!

Ann Sheridan slapped two men ly so hard one day that she so hard one day that she could hardly set down the next day.

The slaps were bestowed on Dick Powell and Bill Davidson. They were evidenee that Ann not only was provoked but downright angry in a seene for Warner Bros. "Naughty but Nice," which is now showing at the Liberty Theatre. The script, of course, and not Ann's temperament was responsible for the slaps.

Back and forth across the set all day long Ann raged and ranted, slapping first Powell and then Davidson. For each "take" she had to slap each man four times and Ann didn't like it. Not liking it, Ann worried, and the more she worried, the more often she went up in her lines.

Finally Director Ray Enright told her that every time she went up in her lines she would have to submit to a spanking administered by Powell, Davidson and himself. Ann good-naturedly agreed but it didn't help much.

"It looks like she's welcoming the spankings as punishment for slapping us," Dick said

Edward Everett Horton In Favorite Role Again

Hollywood's perennial gentleman's gentleman, Edward Everett Horton, is a gentleman's gentleman again in the new Bing Crosby comedy romance with music, "Paris Honeymoon," which is now at the Garden Theatre. This time he accompanies his boss (Bing) to the Balkans for high adventure and in thee quest of romance, Shirley Ross the "Thank for the Memory" girl, and Franciska Gaal, share the love roles.

Did yu ever hear about the man without teeth who received salt water taffy for a Christmas present?

He has his counterpart in George Hays, the familiar "Windy Halliday" of the Hopalong Cassidy outdoor action romances, the latest of which, "Pride of the West," is now at the Garden Theatre. Hayes's new contract with the Producer Harry Sherman specifically states that he may not shave off his famous beard, and, during the filming of his new picture, word arrived in Hollywood that his uncle had died and left him, of all things a barber shop! To make matters worse, Hayes can not even sell it. According to the terms of the will, if Hayes does not want it for himself, it is to go to another relative.

In "Pride of the West," a story of war between ranchers and stage coach robbers, "Windy" rides again with his favorite saddlemates, William Boyd and Russell Hayden.

LOVE IN THE LOCKUP

The hair-brained sleuthing of Gracie Allen lands Ellen Drew and Kent Taylor in the lockup in S. S. Van Dine's "The Gracie Allen Murder Case," which will have its local premiere on Wednesday at the Strand Theatre. Paramount's mystery-comedy also features Warren William and Judith Barrett.

"MAISIE" OPENS THURSDAY AT THE MARYLAND

Ann Sothern and Robert Young in "Maisie", the Metro Goldwyn Mayer picture opening Thursday at the Maryland Theatre. Ian Hunter, Ruth Hussey and Cliff Edwards have starring roles in film.

Shirley Temple's Latest Hit Ends Run at Strand

Thrilling adventure, stirring conflict and breathless emotion crowd each other for plenty of excitement in Shirley Temple's latest picture for 20th Century-Fox, "Susannah of the Mounties." The famous story of the old Northwest shows today for the last times at the Strand Theatre with Randolph Scott and Margaret Lockwood, star of "The Lady Vanishes," featured in the romantic roles.

Hailed as an entirely original and unusual theme for a Shirley Temple vehicle, the picture includes another innovation in the person of Shirley's first "leading man," Martin Good Rider. Martin is a 13-year-old Blackfeet brave, born on a Montana reservation. He teaches Shirley a real Indian dance and the "treaty" between the pair is a highlight of the film.

"Code of the Streets" And "Across the Plains"

Closing today at the Embassy Theatre is the double feature, "The Little Tough Guys," Harry Carey in "Code of The Streets," and Jack Randall in 'Across The Plains."

"In Early Arizona" and 'Within the Law"

Opening tomorrow at the Embassy Theatre will be the twin hit attraction consisting of Bill Elliott in the western "In Early Arizona." The second feature will be Ruth Hussey and Paul Kelly in the Metro Goldwyn Mayer picture "Within The Law."

Ellen Drew Lets Success Come to Her

Lovely Ellen Drew, Paramount player who is on the way to stardom, firmly believes in that old chestnut "Everything comes to her who waits." And she has good reason to believe in it, for exactly three years after she was "discovered" by motion pitcures, she has her fourth featured role in S. S. Van Dine's "The Gracie Allen Murder Case," which opens tomorrow at the Strand Theatre, in which she is featured with Gracie Allen, Warren William, Kent Taylor and Judith Barrett.

The candy store Cinderella who was discovered by William Demarest, then an agent, and now an actor in this picture, waited a long time for fortune to overtake her. She played extra and "bit" roles in twelve pitcures before her break came in her thirteenth production, "Sing You Sinners," the Bing Crosby starrer.

Her work in "Sing You Sinners" earned her the role she played in "If I Were King," opposite Ronald Colman, following which Director-Producer Frank Lloyd described her as the year's best bet for stardom.

In "The Gracie Allen Murder Case" she shares the romantic interest with Kent Taylor, and it is Ellen who calls Philo Vance—Warren William—into the case to free Kent after Gracie Allen has unwittingly accused him of murdering one Benny the "Buzzard."

Ellen is going right on waiting for even greater things, for she firmly believes that her thirteenth picture will mean big things for her.

8.78 Inches of Rain In Wheeling in June

Wheeling, W. Va., July 3. (AP)—Wheeling wound up the month of June with a total of 8.78 inches of rain, one of the wettest Junes in years and in marked contrast with May's 1.50 inches.

Several showers fell in the district today with a storm at 4 p. m., accompanied by high wind. Electric service was disrupted in Marshall county communities and 400 employes of the Marx Toy plant at Glendale were sent home because of power failure.

On the Ohio river side the power was cut off for three hours to Powhatan and Clarington and mines in the Powhatan section were compelled to suspend.

"... That These Colonies Are Free and Independent ..."

Adoption of Declaration of Independence, • July 4, 1776.

Willard's painting, "The Spirit of '76." •

On July 4, 1776, the Continental Congress in Philadelphia unanimously adopted the Declaration of Independence, creating what was to be a great nation, the United States of America. " . . . That these united colonies are, and of right ought to be free and independent states; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown . . . and that as free and independent states, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace . . ." So read the declaration in part. Today we mark the anniversary of that great day as the United States proudly stands as one of the great nations on the face of the earth.

Mae West and Fields To Make Horse Opera

Hollywood, July 3. (AP) — Mae West and W. C. Fields signed a movie contract here to make—of all things—a super-super western.

Nate Blumberg, president of Universal, said the curvaceous Mae and the potato-nosed Fields would begin work on the elaborate horse opera September 1.

Turf and Track Races Take Lead On the Networks

Many Other Holiday Offerings Are Scheduled for Airwaves

Publisher is Critical of Spending-Lending Plan

Washington, July 3. (AP)—Frank E. Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., newspaper publisher, said in a radio address here that the new lending-spending program proposed by President Roosevelt would "end our system of free enterprise."

"If we keep on lending and spending billions in the manner now proposed effective political opposition to the administration entrenched in office will disappear. Already the number dependent upon government is so great that many ask whether Mr. Roosevelt is not already in a position to use this control to renominate and reelect himself," he said.

A Lesson For Us All . . .

A mere handful of men forged the destiny of this nation: some fighting on fields of battle; many combatting the forces of tyranny by their liberal thinking. The results of those few men's unflagging zeal and untiring efforts rest in the documents passed on from their time through many generations; documents which we today must still regard as a heritage which it is our duty to pass down to our own children as the ideology of true Americanism. What better time can there be to enlighten our youg ones—than this July 4th, 163rd Anniversary of our glorious Independence.

Feller Wins 13th as Indians Down Tigers

Cleveland Ace Holds Detroit To Five Hits

Ben Chapman, Tribe Centerfielder Slams out Three Triples

Feller Struck out only Two Batters; Fewest He Ever Fanned

Detroit, July 3 (AP)—Young Bob Feller didn't have his strikeout ball working today but still managed to beat the Detroit Tigers, 4 to 2, thereby enabling the Clevland Indians to improve their hold on third place in the American League.

Fellers, who fanned 54 men in his last four starts against Detroit, whiffed but two today—his smallest game strikeout total since entering the majors in 1936. His previous low mark was four.

In achieving his thirteenth victory of the year, Feller allowed five hits and got noteworthy assistance from Bruce Campbell who lined a homer into the right field stands in the eighth to send in three runs and break a 1-1 deadlock.

Ben Chapman, tribe centerfielder, equalled a modern major league record when he slammed out three tripies. He now shares the mark with six other players.

Rittenhouse and Alpha Lawson Lead W. Va. Qualifiers

By WALTER MASON

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., July 3 (AP)—George Hoffer, the first man to beat par in the 1939 amateur golf tourney, hit the hard going at the very end today and lost a great chance of being this year's medalist.

Hoffer, young Wheeling star, turned in a 68, two under par, in the first 18 holes of his qualifying round as the tournament opened.

Then, on the "fatal" 17th hole of his last round he went into a creek and took a seven. That left him with a second round 76 for a total of 144.

Hoffer's hard luck put him behind Alpha Lawson of Clarksburg and young Bud Rittenhouse of Parkersburg who had 143's to lead the corporal's guard which finished all the 36 holes the first day.

Qualifying play will continue tomorrow and most of the golfers, unmindful of the threat of rain, decided to wait and finish the last 18 today.

Some of the players held up until today for all 36 holes, among them Frank Crum of Williamson, state title holder, who spent the day trying to get the kinks out of his swing.

Instead of going out on the old golf course, Crum put in hours of practice and toward evening was looking in 20-footers which would indicate he was back in form. It was the deadly putting of the southern title holder which brought him through the finals last year.

Coney Seeks New Pilot As Crowe Resigns Post

Lonaconing, July 3—Resignation of Cecil "Hawkeye" Crowe as manager of the Lonaconing club of the Potomac Baseball League and plans for the local entry's reorganization were announced here this morning by President William C. Smith.

Crowe, according to Smith, tossed in the sponge following Saturday's doubleheader defeat at the hands of the Hyndman Eagles. The season's opening skipper did not accompany the club to Cumberland yesterday where the Colts bagged a 9-4 victory.

Players from the Shallmar, Md., team signed last week will be retained, Smith said, and an effort will be made to strengthen the club by signing several local players who originally didn't join the team in the first place.

Coney plays Westvaco in a postponed game here Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock and will be home again next Sunday aginst Hyndman after meeting the Pulpmen in Keyport on Saturday.

Lardner Fans Out Fans Who Fan Up Questions

By JOHN LARDNER
(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

New York, July 3—The Lardner letter-box, the only place an honest man can go these days for the answer to his questions:

Dear Sir—Was the Corbett-Sullivan contest fought on the level?—Skeptic.

Answer: No. The Corbett-Sullivan bout was fought on an incline of about 20 degrees, where Dugan's hill rolls back from Baffin's Brook. For that matter, only one of Sullivan's fights, the one with Kid Sugden, was on a dead level? This was contested on a pool table. In the fifth round, Sullivan dropped Sugden into the corner pocket where his resemblance to the 12-ball was so marked as to cause humorous comment. Disgusted, the kid quit the ring and went to live with his mother.

They Are Not Spared

Dear Mr. Lardner—Please explain how Lefty Gomez got the name "Lefty." A group of us here at Gilhooley's ice cream pavillion have often speculated on this curious nickname and wondered how Gomez got it, but we cannot seem to hit on a likely explanation. Tell us the truth and do not try to spare our feelings.—Gomez Fan club of Birdseye, Ark.

Answer: You rave raised an interesting point here, boys. Gomez himself thinks it has something to do with the way he pitches, but you know how these castillians are—moody, restless, given to fits of depression. If the answer were known, it would probably rebound to Gomez's credit, which has always been good around here. Until we know the whole truth, let us draw a curtain over the subject and tiptoe quietly away.

Dear Sir—What is the longest field goal on record? Who kicked it? Please treat this letter as strictly confidential.—June Bride.

Answer: To those of us who watched the longest field goal on record in the act of being kicked, it almost seemed like the ball would never come down. I remember turning to Jim Thorpe, who was standing alongside of me, and saying "Thorpe, that's a mighty long kick."

Thorpe scuffed the dirt for a moment with the toe of his shoe, and I will never forget his reply.

"Well, Lardy," he said, "it ain't short."

Thorpe didn't speak very often, but when he did, it was always in English.

As to just who kicked that ball, and how far it travelled, my mind is hazy. You can quote me, however, as saying that it was quite a boot.

He's No Sucker

Dear Mr. Lardner—Here is a problem which I feel you might be able to answer. If not, there is no such thing as the law of averages.

South deals and bids two spades. East goes to three diamonds, North mentions three hearts, and West, a single man in the insurance business in Grand Rapids, or right near there, bids a small slam in diamonds. He has the ace, ten, nine, and seven of diamonds, while South has three little ones. Can East make the contract?—Pro Bono Jublico.

Answer: East can do whatever he likes about that. My sympathies are with South, because I have four little ones, myself, and when I some home at night, there is always some new trouble. Elspeth has chicken pox, or Marmakuke is cutting a tooth, or little Spenlow will not drink his bourbon because Vician has put goldfish in the chaser.

For all of that, however, I would not trade my four nestlings for all the tea in China. Well, anyway, one quarter of the tea in China. If the Chinese put up enough tea, I would be a sucker not to make the deal.

My heart goes out to West, whom you describe as a single man with an insurance business near Grand Rapids. He does not hear the patter of tiny feet when he goes home at night. As a matter of fact, from what you tell me, he probably does not go home at night. I wonder if he is any relation to a girl I used to know in Battle Creek by the name of Harriet West. Nice girl.

As for your problem, just bear in mind that three of a kind beats two pair, and hitting on the break is barred in California. Let's play the game hard, friends, but let's play it clean. Otherwise, is it worth playing? I think not.

Hughes Top Hitter Of Davis Plumbers

Bumping enemy hurlers for 25 hits in 41 times at bat, Elmer Hughes topped the Davis Plumbers in batting during the East Side Softball League first half race with the fine average of .609. The Plumbers won 11 of 21 games during the first half campaigning.

Moore, second with .589, had the most triples—three, while Snyder who finished with an .500 was the home run leader with three circuit drives.

The batting averages of other Davis players to see action in more than five games follow: Stewart, .458; Wilson .452; Loibel .434; O'Neal .431; Kelly .427; Welsh .377; Davis .366; Wright .321; Johnson .297 and Brown .250.

Three St. Louis Players Banished As Sox Win 8 to 3

Pitchers Lawson, Kennedy and Manager Haney Chased by Hubbard

St. Louis, July 3. (AP) — Three Browns were banished for too vociferous protest as the Chicago White Sox mauled three pitchers for 17 hits and an 8 to 3 victory over St. Louis today.

It started in the Sox half of the seventh. Pitcher Roxie Lawson, who had relieved Bob Harris in the second, threw his glove into the air and the resin bag into the stands in protest over a ball Umpire Cal Hubbard called on Mike Tresh. Hubbard promptly put him out of the game.

Between innings the Browns' manager, Fred Haney, and Pitcher Vern Kennedy said more about that decision than Hubbard thought justified, and they were ordered from the field.

Two Strokes Lopped Off Golf Course At Wildwood

Pittsburgh, July 3 (AP) — Two strokes were looped off par at the tough 6,550-yard Wildwood country club course today in preparation for the $10,000 Dapper Dan Golf tournament August 10.

Nelson Zimmerman, professional-greenskeeper, said par 72 had been reduced to 70 in line with present day efforts to curb low scoring by long-hitting professionals.

The fifth, normally a 461-yard par five hole, was reduced to par four, as was the twelfth, a 473-yard par five.

Zimmerman commented:

"Most all of the courses in this country are setups for the tournament playing professionals. Naturally, they save most of their strokes on the long holes. Wildwood will hardy prove to be a setup for the boys."

The SPORT TRAIL

By RUSS NEWLAND

San Francisco, July 3 (AP) — Batting for the sports trail nomad, Whitney (par 10) Martin, from a distance of 3000 miles is a fair country poke in any language but as long as the New York Giants are in the National League race this trip to the plate should fatten the average.

While cruising for typewriter fodder we ran across a fellow who produced prima facie evidence to support his contention that the Giants club, as a baseball talent grabbing organization, has been operated in dumb fashion at times during the last fifteen years.

The fellow's name is Charles Graham. He's the president of the San Francisco Seals ,the Coast League outfit which has sent twenty bell-ringers to the Big Leagues in two decades.

At this time Graham has a clever outfielding prospect known as Dominic Di Maggio, ready to peddle to a Major League team. If Dominic's sale this year doesn't punch the cash register into a five-figure delirium, Graham will be amazed. But if the Giants should step in and sentence the lad to a term of fat salaried servitude, the Seals' head man would keel over in a dead faint.

Here's why:

The Giants had first call on four former Seals who seem to have struggled along even if they didn't land in the Polo Grounds. One is Paul Waner of the Pirates. The others are cross town rival attractions of the Giants, namely Joe Di Maggio, "Lefty" Gomez and Frank Crosetti of the Yankees.

This is Graham's story and he will stick to it. The late George Putnam, secretary of the Seals, tried for three days to get in touch with the late John McGraw, manager of the Giants, to interest him in Waner. Failing he went to Pittsburgh in a $65,000 deal. Months later, when McGraw bumped into him at a meeting and demanded to know why the Giants hadn't been given a chance to bid, Putnam learned he had been stopping in the same hotel in New York and "Muggsy" and his messages hadn't even been relayed to the latter from the club's front office.

The Crosetti case practically parallels that of Waner. After a telegraphic inquiry on terms, Graham went to New York. He informed the prospective buyers Crosetti was still too green to pick but offered first call on him and an expert report in a few months. Ain't those Giants forgetful?

"Goofy" Gomez has been a long time star of the Yankees mound corps but it's doubtful if he knows the Giants once held a 48-hour option on him. Dick Kinsella, the scout, had made his report and moved on figuring the deal was in the bag. As time to exercise the option drew near, a telegraphic warning was sent to the Giants' office. Then the time limit was extended an hour. Five scouts were in Seals stadium ready to bid on Gomez. The Yankees hit the jackpot again.

The Joe Di Maggio case takes the chocolate - coated bathtub. The scout who came here to put the old eagle eye on him (we spare his feelings by mentioning no names) turned thumbs down because, of all things, he didn't like the way Joe wore his uniform. Said he'd be a foul ball in the big show. Tie that one.

Di Maggio's "baby" brother, Dominic, is ready to be measured for a big league suit now.

Dominic, says Graham, is more alert mentally than Joe and is a better base runner. Also, he will cover as much ground in the outfield as his brother. Dominic is hitting a cool .369 today, with the full use of only one hand. The other was injured for six weeks. The Giants are four games out of first place. And the Chicago Cubs are ready to gobble up the youngest of the Di Maggios.

Junior Rifle Members Go To Meet at Camp Ritchie

Frostburg—The Mountaineer 4-H Junior Rifle Club of Frostburg is sending its three highest team members to the annual eastern small bore rifle matches at Camp Ritchie. There they will compete for the regional Junior championship that takes in all the northeastern states.

The 4-H boys won first place in Division C of the National Rifle Associatio's national bi-weekly postal matches. At Ritchie they will defend their titles by keen shoulder to shoulder competition.

Among the party leaving today are William Johnson, Sidney Green Jr., John Laing and Harry Morgan, instructor of the club.

Johnny Mize Is Star as St. Louis Defeats Chicago

First Baseman Hits Two Home Runs, a Triple and Two Bagger

Chicago, July 3 (AP)—Big Johnny Mize smashed out two home runs, a triple and a double today to account personally for the St. Louis Cardinals' 5 to 3 victory over the Chicago Cubs in their series opener before 12,749 cash customers.

The triumph moved the Cards to third place and dropped the Cubs to fourth.

The husky first baseman, in a perfect day at bat, either drove in or scored four of the five St. Louis runs. The circuit blows were his 13th and 14th of the season. The other card tally came in the ninth inning on a home run by Stuart Martin.

Mize's big day prevented Bill Lee from chalking up his ninth win, instead it gave him his ninth defeat of the campaign.

Golfer Makes Hole In One but Still Is Not Satisfied

Bloomington, Ind., July 3 (AP) — Ken Welty, 27-year-old Bloomington golf professional, who set out four days ago to shoot 100 golf balls a day on a 135 yard hole here until he made a hole-in-one sank the ace today—but he isn't satisfied.

He's going to keep up that 100 shots a day program until he has taken 6,000 of them just to see how many holes-in-one he can get.

It was Welty's 380th shot that skittered into the cup today. The ball hit about twelve feet from the pin and then rolled in. Until that shot of his best effort had been one that stopped 4½ inches from the cup.

Weuty intends to take a holiday tomorrow so he fired 200 shots today but he'll resume the 100 per day diet Tuesday.

TURNING TO LIGHTER CLASSES

New York—Another heavyweight championship fight went rumbling into the records when Joe Louis bombed Tony Galento out in the fourth round and now the fight fan looks to the lighter classes for action. Two skirmishes are coming up soon—Billy Conn and Melio Bettina and Henry Armstrong and Lou Ambers—and both should be hair-raisers.

Conn and Bettina will be fighting for the light heavyweight championship of the world—in New York. The light heavyweight division has been scrambled by the case of John Henry Lewis, who first abandoned the championship to fight Louis and then, seeking to reclaim it, found himself practically banned because of partial blindness. Meanwhile, the New York State Athletic Commission, which likes to settle these things to its own satisfaction at least, conferred the title on Bettina, winner by a knockout over Tiger Jack Fox.

Bettina hasn't been recognized as yet by the National Boxing Association but probably will be—or the winner of the Bettina - Conn fight probably will be. The N.B.A doesn't like to follow where the New York Commission has broken ground but in this case the N.B.A., having weakened on Lewis, has no one else on whom to confer the title.

Stringing With Conn

Bettina is a big, strong kid but not overly skillful. Conn, a rangy sharpshooter, is rated as the best young fighter to come along in years and the fight mob is stringing with him to take Bettina over and clinch his place as the best light heavyweight in the country—a distinction generally conceded to him already although he never has fought as a light heavyweight, having but fairly recently outgrown the middleweight class.

Conn, as a matter of fact, is regarded as a possible opponent for Louis within the next couple of years—if somebody doesn't get to Joe first,, which doesn't seem too likely. Billy weighs about 169 or 170 now but he is six feet tall, has taken on nearly twenty pounds in the last year or so and may go to 190—which would make him big enough to fight Louis or anybody else. He isn't a heavy puncher but he can cut and hurt an opponent, especially with his left hook, and he has won two over-the-weight bouts with Fred Apostoli, the best middleweight in the world.

Armstrong and Ambers

Armstrong took the lightweight championship from Ambers in a savage and bitter fight and probably will be favored to beat the Herkimer Hurricane again but some form players may lay off Henry this time because the record is that nobody beats Ambers twice. Pedro Montanez and a few others have beaten him once but look in the book and you'll see that Lou always finishes in front when there was a return match.

Both Ambers and Armstrong have been fairly active since their bout last August, but Armstrong has taken part in a couple of major engagements while Ambers has been brawling with lesser foes. Henry, among his exploits, won a decision over his then most formidable welterweight challenger, Ceferina Garcia—since turned middleweight—and went to England and outpointed Ernie Roderick, the welterweight champion of the British Empire.

This, however, will be his first serious defence of the lightweight championship. The last time I saw him, which was at Louis's training camp a week or so before the Galento fight, Henry still had a very sore left hand, which has been bothering him since he smashed it on Garcia's skull. My advice to him is to have that hand in shape by the time his date with Ambers rolls around—and if it isn't in shape, to get a further postponement. I don't think anybody can lick Ambers with only one good hand.

Whirlwinds Take Softball Crown by Trouncing Corriganville 17-3

The Trozzo Whirlwinds captured the first-half pennant in the Allegany Softball League yesterday evening by thumping the Corriganville Hustlers 17 to 3 at Corriganville before an estimated crowd of over 350 fans. Prior to the tilt which was the final of the opening dash, the two teams were knotted for first place with twenlve victories and seven defeats apiece.

The Hustlers were outclassed in every department of the game as the visiting team bubbled over with class. The Whirlwinds amassed 19 base hits, fielded beautifully, ran the bases flawlessly and utilized the seven-hit twirling of Jim "Tiger" Angellatta to hold the home crew to a low score. None of the Trozzo team's hits were bunts, with Joe Kelley, Harry Boyer and Angellatta getting two each.

Whirlwinds on Rampage

Harry Raygor tossed well for the Hustlers for four innings, at the end of which the score stood knotted at 2-2. But in the fifth frame the classy Cumberland ten manufactured four runs on the same number of hits and two of eight enemy bobbles.

The game, however, was really turned into a rout in the ensuing inning as every player in the visiting lineup got a turn with the wil-

Bunny Austin Soundly Trounced by Cooke

Young American Pulls Upset in Tennis Tourney

24 Year Old Portland, Ore., Player Puts Favorite out of Tourney

Youngster Said He Was Angered by British Tennis Critics

By SCOTTY RESTON

Wimbledon, Eng., July 3. (AP)—Elly Cooke of Portland, Ore., a stout-hearted 24-year-old boy who, like Don Budge, came out of Tom Stowe's California tennis school, swept favored Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin right off the center court today and marched, with Bobby Riggs of Chicago, right into the semi-finals of Britain's "world tennis championship."

Angered by British tennis critics who blandly had declared Austin was a 3-1 cinch to win, Cooke hit homers off Bunny's dew-drop service all afternoon and beat him with the loss of only four games, 6-3, 6-0, 6-1.

Riggs, who was seeded second to Austin, trounced Ghaus Mohammed of India, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2, and now will meet Ferenc Puncec in the semi-finals. The Yugoslav ace whipped Gene Smith, the Berkeley, (Calif.) schoolmaster who was handicapped by an arm injury, 6-0, 6-2, 6-2. Henner Henkel of Germany who defeated Franz Kukuljevic of Yugoslavia, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2, in the other quarter-final, will be Cookie's next opponent.

In the women's singles, Alice Marble, Helen Jacobs and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan came through to the quarterfinals with the rest of the seeded players. Miss Marble, the No. 1 seed, turned back Mrs. A. Halff of France, 6-1, 6-1; Miss Jacobs eliminated England's Margot Lumb, who beat her at Forest Hills last year, 6-2, 7-5, and Mrs. Fabyan was taken to three sets to top Mrs. D. L. Little, 1937 champion, 6-1, 3-6, 6-2.

Cooke is a sort of tennis orphan. Two years ago he was the last-ranking player in the United States—twenty-eighth. At the end of 1937, he went down to Stowe's school in Oakland, Calif., and, when reporters gathered around him tonight, he declared:

"Well, if you like my game, give Tom Stowe credit for it. He changed it completely two years ago."

Cook may be well-known in Portland, but nobody over here ever had heard of him and they were a little contemptuous of his chances of beating Austin.

"I guess I've been reading the papers too much over here," said Cooke. "They made me mad. Nobody even gave me a chance."

Riggs today at last showed the center court why he is America's No. 1 amateur. He was superb, racing around the court like a champion, hitting the ball with more pace than anybody in the tournament, and coming up with unanswerable shots just when everybody thought he couldn't even touch the ball.

Frostburg, July 3—Congregational tossers, who extended their Frostburg Church Softball League winning streak to seven games last week by trimming Lutheran, 17-8, and Welsh Baptist, 9-6, will seek their eighth in a row Wednesday when they oppose Salem Reformed.

Eckhart will battle Welsh Baptist today. In other games this week, Lutheran will tangle with First Methodist and Southern Methodist will engage Presbyterian-Brethren in a doubleheader Thursday and English Baptist will play Episcopal Friday.

In other games last week, Salem Reformed turned back Southern Methodist, 7-6, and English Baptist, 11-5, Welsh Baptist nosed out First Methodist, 5-4, and Eckhart shut out Presbyterian, 7-0.

Old Export Nine In for Busy Week

The Old Export baseball team of the Tri-County League will be kept busy this week and next according to plans completed yesterday by Manager John Hafer. This afternoon the Brewers will cross bats with Everett (Pa.) at Everett. Thursday Paw Paw will be met at home, Saturday they will journey to Barton to meet the Red Sox of that place in a return tilt, and Sunday they will tangle with the first-place Keyser Reds in a loop game at the latter place. The tussle will mark the first meeting of these two outfits this year.

The following week the Exports will entertain the Cumberland Colts of the Bi-State circuit on the North End Playground and a Saturday game with Everett at home is pending.

Trainer-Jockey Each Win Triples At Charles Town

Lou Machado Rides Three And Claude Feltner Saddles As Many

Charles Town, W. Va., July 3 (AP)—Trainer Claude Feltner and Jockey Lou Machado made it Feltner-Machado day at this track, each scoring a triple today.

Mrs. Claude Feltner's Margie Wrack won the Berkeley Springs purse, feature of the eight-race card, going all out to win from Mrs. H. Horst's Consistent. W. Royle's Lady Buck was third. Margie Wrack paid $17.

Woody Kirk, sensational Silver Springs, Md., jockey, was set down for the balance of the meet for bumping Miss Maker with Nanci's Best in the opening race. Miss Maker had won four straight.

Jockey Cecil Coffman of Cumberland, Md., was also suspended for the balance of the meeting for cutting across his field too sharply on Grouchneur in the fourth.

low. Seven tallies crossed the platter during the uprising and chief among seven hits was Roy Walburn's two-base wallop with the stations filled. Eight more Whirlwinds batted in the final session but only four scored. Three safe bunts and Russ Minnicks line single to right featured the round.

Joe Geatz Leads Attack

Corriganville chalked up single markers in the third, fourth and sixth frames but only two of them were earned as Joe Geatz threw wild after making a dandy stop of Billy Klines hard ground smash in the sixth. Vince Fleegle scored from third on the misplay.

The Hustlers' counter in the third was made by Leo Fleegle who got on base on another error by Joe Geatz, scampered to second on Russ Robertson's sacrifice and tallied from there on Pitcher Raygor's long single to left-center. Lou Fleegle carried th other run across the platter in the fourth frame on Leo Fleegle's single.

Joe Geatz, Whirlwind shortstop, was the batting star of the game, hammering out four hits in five attempts, with one of them going for three cushions. His mates Angellata and Walburn each were credited with three, while Third Baseman Vince Fleegle with two safe smacks, was the only Cirriganville hitter to get more than one safety.

Saddle Strap Sam

"Wakita" and "Beaufast" did right well by me yesterday at right nice prices, while "Press Time," "Lady Infinite," "On The Dot" and "Brain Child" all ran smart seconds. "Play Gold" was third and "Ghost Queen" and "Poesy" ran out. I'll have to look into the "Poesy" proposition because that plug had no business out of the money even when a screwball horse named "Gimpey" (the same that jumped the Fairgo fence, popped out of the clouds in the stretch and paid $48.30 to win.

I'm going to another crop today:—

Maybe "Ghost Train" in the first at Suffolk will make amends for what "Ghost Queen" did yesterday.

The rest of the line-up is:—

"MEMORY BOOK"—Fifth at Empire City.

"BALAPIN"—Seventh at Delaware.

"NANCY MAE"—Eighth at Delaware.

"BAIN MARIE"—Seventh at Arlington.

I see "Silver Braid" going in the second at Arlington and I'm staying with it because someday it will put a silver lining on the dark clouds that so far have blotted out my hopes in the plug.

I see where some of the big pickers have "Sandy Bill" on top in the seventh at Empire but I'm going to "Mr. Deins" and I'm hoping that "Mr. Deins", like "Mr. Deeds," will go to town.

It's "get-away" day at Charles Town today, though "in my book" it's been "get-away" day there every day. I'm laying off the Mountaineer menage, but for you boys and girls who are taking in the tricks there this afternoon I see "Boulder Dam" entered in seventh. If they don't grab "feed and freight" money for that plug there today, it looks like it will have to become a permanent resident of the state—unless they walk it over the highway to Hagerstown and feed it on grass enroute to the Hub City. It might win there!

Closed Lonaconing Bank Pays Depositors 20 Percent Dividend

Receiver Says 61.6 Percent Has Been Paid

Checks Dated July 1 Mailed by Warren F. Sterling This Week

onaconing, July 3 — Depositors of the closed Lonaconing Savings Bank, of this place, have been mailed checks amounting to twenty percent, as the third distribution, since the close of the institution. With the payment of this amount a total of 61.6% has been paid the depositors.

Warren F. Sterling, Receiver of the Bank, in the notice to creditors states, "There remain in the hands of the Receiver certain assets from which he believes additional sums can be realized, and there will be further distributions at a later date of a now undetermined amount."

The report, account and distribution has recently been filed by the Receiver, in the Circuit Court of Allegany County, and shows that depositors and other general creditors are entitled to have received an aggregate of 61.6% of their original net claims therein.

Until several months ago the closed bank was housed in the Ritchie Building, on West Main street, but the effects were removed when C. W. Treadwell, who was acting agent for the Receiver, Warren F Sterling, was removed to another locality.

The checks were drawn on the Liberty Trust Company, Cumberland, and dated July 1, 1939, and signed by Warren F. Sterling, Bank Commissioner, Receiver, Lonaconing Savings Bank. Third distribution to creditors of twenty percent is also plainly shown in the left hand corner.

Martin Funeral

Funeral services for Joseph Gardner Martin, 52, who died Thursday, at the Maryland General Hospital, Baltimore, following a major operation, were conducted today at 2 p. m. from the Methodist church, Midland, with the Rev. Joseph Young, pastor, officiating. Interment was in the Allegany Cemetery, Frostburg.

Honorary and active pallbearers were selected from the membership of the George's Creek Valley Lodge, No. 161, A. F. and A. M.; and the Garfield Royal Arch Chapter, No. 30, of which he was a member.

Brief Mention

Thomas Topolonicki and son Charles, Baltimore, were the guests of Mrs. Elizabeth Longridge, Sunday, at her home in Barton.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Askey; Mr. and Mrs. John Askey, and children Joyce, Jack and David, all of Pittsburgh, Pa., arrived today to visit over the holiday with Mr. John Askey, and daughter, Miss Jane Askey, Castle Hill. Enroute they stopped in Cumberland, where Mr. and Mrs. William Askey, Miss Mary Askey, Louis Hast and Frederick Roberts, joined the party, and accompanied them here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Winner, Uniontown, Pa., were the week-end guests of the latter's mother, Mrs. Garrett Burns, Midland. Mr. James Burns, of Uniontown, accompanied them on the trip.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Dennison and children Patty Ann and Joe, left yesterday for Morgantown, W. Va., to make their home. They resided in Barton.

Mr. and Mrs. William Potter, Uniontown, Pa., were week-end guests at the home of relatives in Midland.

Three Sisters Drown In Swollen River

West Newton, Pa., July 3. (AP)—Three sisters linked arm in arm drowned yesterday when they and another girl leaped from a small skiff, whirling and tossing in the swift, rain-swollen Youghiogheny River near this Western Pennsylvania community.

Burgess A. B. Adams reported the victims were Helen Mirella, 18, Ann, 20, and Louise, 22, of Collinsburg, across the river from West Newton.

Adams said he learned the fourth girl, Anna Skirda, 20, grabbed an overhanging tree branch and pulled herself ashore.

Train Kills Girl

Wellsburg, W. Va., July 3 (AP)—Eileen Miller, 11, returning home after taking lunch to her brother, was fatally injured today by a Wheeling-bound Pennsylvania railroad passenger train. The accident occurred two miles north of Wellsburg.

Various Causes Are Cited For Desertion at Altar

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

VARIOUS CAUSES

From all over the country have come answers to Patricia's letter. Patricia is the girl who wrote to this column that her fiance went back on her at the last minute—saying he felt he didn't love her enough to marry her.

Men who have acted like Patricia's lover and deserted girls at the last moment, have told the reason why. These alibis are strangely enlightening. Man is not necessarily a villain, it would seem, because he deserts a girl at the last moment. But he is needlessly cruel if he doesn't state his reasons, and give her a chance to "save face."

Wanted To Die

One man writes: "Three weeks before the day set for my marriage I discovered I was incurably ill of tuberculosis. I wanted to die instead of facing the horrors that confronted me. But I couldn't stand the last scene with my girl. I knew she'd want to sacrifice herself to the bitter end, and I didn't want that. Arizona swallowed me up, and here I've dragged out a wretched existence, waiting. I knew if I told my girl she would have gone with me, and I didn't want to do her any more harm than I had done her already. A coward's way, perhaps, but it was mine."

Two other men have written to this column saying that discoveries regarding their health left them no choice, but to quit. One told the girl and she thanked him. The other man allowed her to draw her own conclusions.

Lincoln's Case Cited

Still another correspondent, whose interesting letter has already been given in this column, cites the case of Abraham Lincoln's desertion of Mary Todd on the date set for their wedding. Self-distrust, as to his ability to make a woman happy, will often cause a man to quit at the last moment. This seems to have been Lincoln's case. On the second date set for his wedding, he did not fail Mary Todd.

The attitude of their mothers caused several young men to break their engagements. One boy wrote frankly: "My mother gave up too much of her life for me to disregard her wishes, but she would have made life unendurable for the girl I love." Another wrote that it was a question of whom he should support—mother or wife. And he chose his mother. A third said his fiancee declined to live under the same roof with his mother. Both ladies were hot-tempered, and one hot-tempered in a house was enough for him. His mother was in possession.

"It was after a big party, and I did this mad thing which I have regretted all my life. I still love the man I went back on."

Sometimes a girl will forswear her life's happiness for the most unselfish reasons: "If I had married, the whole family would have gone to pieces—my aged father, my sister and her two children—and while none of them are grateful or seem aware of the sacrifices I have made for them as the bread-winner, still it seemed a clear case of duty at the time."

More men than women have gone back on their promises to marry on account of religion. To them, the way they worship God seems more important than the way they are to be worshipped in an earthly love.

Some women seem to be deserted by reason when it comes to marrying. They are deeply in love, but so full of doubt in rgard to making a go of their marriage that they keep putting it off day after day until at last the day puts them off too.

Oakland Scouts Will Have Fine Camping Center

New Kitchen and Enclosed Dining Room and Other Improvements Made

Oakland, July 3 — A new kitchen and enclosed dining room combined, and a decided improvement in the sleeping quarters, will greet the Boy Scouts of Oakland Troop No. 1 when they begin their summer encampment the latter part of July, at the scout camp on Deep Creek Lake.

For the first time in fifteen years of camping the scouts will have an enclosed and screened place to eat, with ample facilities for preparing meals. The combined building takes the place of an open-air mess hall and an open shack formerly used as a kitchen.

The new building was completed this week, with the exception of the screening. The dining hall is forty feet long and twelve feet wide. The kitchen is about twelve by eighteen. The stove formerly used in the Frantz hotel has been secured and a large ice-box is also being donated. A floor has been built in the sleeping quarters and for the first time the campers will be out of the mud on disagreeable days. The floor was put down one day this week by Dr. W. W. Grant, chairman of the troop committee, his three sons and Howard C. Riggs, scoutmaster.

Funds to pay for the material and construction of the building was donated by citizens of town, but Dr. Grant reported that although over $250 had been pledged, that expenses would probably run to $300 and that there was still ample opportunity for those who had not yet helped out, to do so.

Officers Installed

Newly elected officers of the Oakland Rotary club took over their duties Friday at the regular weekly meeting. At the same time the membership heard a report on the Rotary International Convention at Cleveland, by Grover C. Stemple, president-elect, and Walter W. Dawson, a former president. The presentation of a past president's button to retiring president, Foster D. Bittle, was made by E. Ray Jones, another past president.

Other officers are Cecil Smith, Arthur Lawton, O. T. Graser, F. C. Kley, Emroy Bolden and F. D. Bittle, board of directors; Cecil Smith, vice-president; Delbert Davis, treasurer; and W. O. Davis, secretary. Out-going members of the board are Lester C. Yutzy, Dr. W. W. Grant and C. E. Sharps. The new board will organize and make appointments of committees July 12.

Members of the Oakland Boys' Band were guests of the club on Friday and gave a concert before and following the dinner.

Rhododendron in Bloom

The rhododendron bloom in Garrett county will be full this week and will be seen for a ten-day period. This plant is favored in the deep recesses of the forest, along mountain streams. There appears an extensive growth along Lost Land Run, Swallow Falls, Big Run, Poplar Lick, and in the Potomac State Forest.

Visitors to these points are being asked not to pluck the growth or any other wild flowering plants. All points where the flowers can be seen are accessible by automobile.

In the past month the mountain laurel has been in bloom, both pink and white.

Folk Music at Festival

The summer program at Mountain Lake Park will include as one of the highlights a festival of folk art and folk music. This will be presented on Saturday, July 15, according to Miss Sara B. Huff, in charge. The program will include mountain music, music by a Negro choir, the music of a number of European nationalities, and it is planned that a number of groups and individuals from the Allegheny Tableland will take part. Any individual or group of persons interested in appearing on the program is asked to write Miss Huff, at Mt Lake Park.

One of the chief features will be the display of quilts, in groups over thirty years old, and under thirty. Daniel Houghten, of Arthurdale, is acting as a member of this committee.

Engagement Announced

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Jane Ann Beckwith, of Baltimore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Beckwith, Rochester, N. Y., to Dr. Howard Kemp Rathbun, Oakland, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin E. Rathbun.

Miss Beckwith is a graduate of Bethel Woman's College, Hopkinsville, Kentucky and of Johns Hopkins Training school of Nursing, Baltimore.

Dr. Rathbun is a graduate of Oakland high school, Western Maryland college and Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.

The date of the wedding has not been announced.

Showers Predicted For W. Va. Today

(By The Associated Press)

Unworried by predictions of showers, West Virginia closed up shop Monday night for a July 4 celebration, which under the law may not have firecrackers but there will be everything else that goes with holidaying.

State police, reporting the state still free of holiday traffic fatalities, took up an early patrol to keep the record clean if possible.

Independence day meetings will be held in several parts of the state but for the most part the crowds will be found at beaches and resorts.

Republicans of Taylor county will rally at Grafton to hear National Committeeman Walter S. Hallanan, State Chairman Robert H. C. Kay, representative A. C. Schiffler and others.

Governor Homer A. Holt will go to Ravenswood to address a celebration.

Although under a new state law fireworks are banned except by special permit, police in several of the larger cities were watching for any "bootlegged" 'crackers.

On the whole it was expected to be a more or less noiseless fourth, Charleston, for instance, was singularly free of preholiday bangs.

Although no fatal highway accidents had yet been reported for the long holiday week-end, there was one drowning and an eleven-year-old girl was killed by a train near Wellsburg. Eileen Miller, 11, was struck as she returned home from delivering a lunch to her brother.

Oppose Neely Bill

Logan, W. Va., July 3 (AP)—The Guyan Valley Mining Institute voted unanimously to petition the U. S. Congress in opposition to the bill proposed by Senator Neely (D-WVa) to require federal inspection of mining operations.

Brief Items

June's total rainfall amounted to more than ten inches, according to official records at the H. Weber and Sons Company, near town. The previous high of twelve inches, fell in 1912.

The oiling and resurfacing of the state highways in Garrett county will be started about July 17, according to G. Bates Chaires, road engineer in this county. When the work is completed the county will have more than forty-two miles of resurfaced highways which will include more than ten miles of the National Highway. The Commission will use in the work more than 135,000 gallons of oil.

Practical Advice On July 4 Mishaps

By LOGAN CLENDENNING, M. D.

We took occasion to sound our regular Fourth of July warning last Saturday, particularly pointing out the danger of small children playing with socalled harmless fireworks and, more particularly, playing with them without adult supervision. This latter danger is very real on the few days before and the few days after the Fourth, when "bootleg" celebrations are carried on.

But now that the Fourth is actually here, let us give some practical advice about fireworks injuries, because in spite of all the warnings and in spite of all the good intentions, some celebration is certainly going to be carried on.

Fireworks burns are more painful than other burns because of the chemicals carried into the wound. In treatment of these burns certain acids and oils are generally prescribed by the doctor.

Deep Lacerations

In deep lacerations the doctor is sure to bring up the advisability of using tetanus antitoxin as a preventive of lockjaw. The decision is usually up to the parents.

Certainly in any doubtful case, where there is a possibility of street dirt having contaminated the wound, tetanus antitoxin should be used. It seems a shame that people should hesitate—because of the ancient prejudice against a "serum"—to give their children the benefit of protection against lockjaw, because, rare as the disease is and remote as the chances of infection are, the disease itself is so terrible and the consequences should infection occur, so tragic, that any method of prevention should be eagerly accepted.

The size of the wound has not as much to do with the possibility of tetanus as the nature of the wound. Open wounds are least liable to the infection, while punctured or lacerated wounds are most liable. Very trivial wounds, even a pin prick, have been known to develop tetanus at the base.

Trustworthy Preventative

Tetanus antitoxin is a specific and trustworthy preventative. In the World war, before its use became universal after wounds, the incidence of lockjaw among the wounded was shocking. After its routine use, the incidence fell to a fraction of 1 per cent. In the Civil war, before tetanus antitoxin was developed, the incidence of tetanus was one to 487 wounds. In the World war, when tetanus antitoxin was routinely used, the incidence in the American armies was one to 6,224 wounds.

Tetanus antitoxin is made by immunizing horses and is held in solution in horse serum. It is given under the skin. About a week after injection, in most cases, there appears a serum rash which lasts a day or two and is annoying, but is not dangerous.

How Not To Go about Task Of Sending a Child to Bed

By GARRY C MYERS, Ph. D

Harry is 11. The clock has just announced it is 8 o'clock.

"About time for bed, Harry," mother observes. But there's no reply from Harry. Soon the clock says 8:15.

"It is time for you to be in bed," his mother says with a little annoyance in her voice.

"Just a minute, Mother," is the answer, and nothing more is said until it is 8:25.

"Now Harry, you must go to bed," Mother says complainingly.

"I'm going," whines back Harry. More silence follows.

"Didn't I tell you to go to bed?" Mother demands, more vigorously and with added heat. "Here it is 8:45."

"Oh, I'm going," hollers Harry, much annoyed.

Dad, reading in another room, overhears the intermittent dialogue.

"Go right to bed, there, boy!" he calls.

"All right, Dad, is the reply.

Nine o'clock. Dad appears, finding young Harry still at the comic strip or by the radio.

"Didn't I tell you to go to bed? Why don't you obey? I don't see what is the matter with you. You should have been asleep an hour ago."

Then begins a battle of words, with Dad sparring always for the last word and interrupting Harry every little while to exhort him on the virtue of obedience. The argument, in which Dad says most, takes up another quarter of an hour. Finally the lad leisurely climbs up the stairs, saying under his breath a lot of things he does not dare to say aloud. The father rages like a maniac and scolds the mother for not making the child mind.

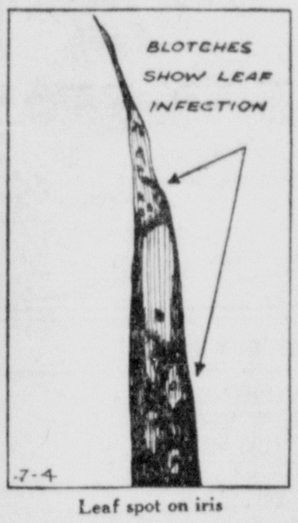

These parents are not feebleminded. They, perhaps, are college graduates, though they act about as children in the nursery.

Father and Mother of Harry: Sit down together in the absence of the lad and agree upon a proper hour for the boy to go to bed. Then have another conference, with Harry present. Call such a conference when both of you can be very calm and sensible, able to reason and to speak gently, with no suggestion of anger or excitement. Let the lad give his ideas about a proper bedtime hour. Try to induce him to choose a reasonable one. Failing to do so, announce calmly to him what the hour shall be, and the date a day or two ahead when it shall go into effect. Tell him that you solemnly pledge to him to nag no more and to say nothing from that evening on about going to bed, but that for every minute he is up after this designated hour the penalty will be so much. Make it definite and then don't lie.

Your plan must work. There must be no failure. Harry must learn to send himself to bed every evening the next several months, by the clock.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Leaf spot on iris

Leaf spot is common on iris. It is a fungus disease which usually is not noticed until after the plants have bloomed. The disease, however, steadily becomes more serious as the season advances. The disease appears only to affect the foliage but if it continues unchecked year after year it weakens and eventually kills the plant.

The disease can be recognized by the characteristic spots which appear on both sides of the leaf as shown in the illustration. At first these spots show as small brown areas surrounded by water-soaked margins, which later turn yellow. As the disease advances the spots enlarge and become gray in the center, dotted with black tufts of the fungus. In severe cases the leaves appear to have a burned appearance.

This fungus lives over the winter on the dead foliage of the iris plants. Spring rains cause the disease to flare up again in the new growth. Sanitation is the best control method. Burn all infected leaves. Spraying the plants with Bordeaux solution is also helpful.

A SYMBOL OF LIBERTY

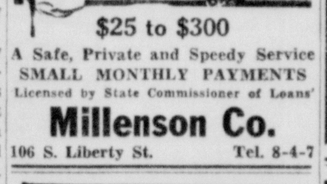

One hundred and sixty-three years of independence . . . One hundred and sixty-three years of a flag proudly waving over a grateful people.

Not as an insignia of a great nation . . . Not as a pennant of defiance and hate . . . But as a symbol of a peoples' and a government's love for freedom, peace and tolerance. May our great flag continue to wave. ON THESE PRINCIPLES, for countless generations to come.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my son, Charles [illegible] Jr., who departed this life [illegible] ago today, July 4, 1935.

[illegible] many years ago there came a boy, [illegible]ing to me my overflow of joy. [illegible]ended and taught to walk, with [illegible] care.

[illegible]owing to manhood, strong to do [illegible].

[illegible] came the summons—ah, how [illegible] blow!

[illegible] could he leave me, who had [illegible] him so?

[illegible]r who seest us, hear my parent [illegible].

As I watched him here, O God please [illegible] him there.

CROWDED BUS BURSTS INTO FLAMES--37 RESCUE

Driver Assists Greyhound Riders Out of Flames

Bus Is Destroyed, Baggage Saved; Hot Brakes Blamed

Thirty-seven passengers escaped last night when an eastern bound Greyhound bus burst into flames on Route 50 seven miles from Keyser.

Over-heated brakes was believed to have started the fire, it was reported. Bus Driver Thomas Jones, Clarksburg, herded his passengers out of the flaming bus and then proceeded to save all the baggage.

The bus was en route from St. Louis to Washington. The body of the bus was destroyed, it was reported.

Brothers' Cars Crash On Eve of Holiday

Two brothers escaped injury when the two cars in which they were riding crashed late last night two miles from Flintstone on Route 40.

William Bowman, 21, of Flintstone, was on his way to work at the Celanese plant, when the Flintstone-bound car driven by John Shipway, 25, and his passenger, Porter Bowman, 16, both of Flintstone, crashed. Both vehicles rolling over twice.

Shipway was rushed to Allegany hospital suffering from possible chest injuries and face cuts. He was knocked unconscious in the pile-up. His condition was fair at nidnight.

State Police were investigating the case at midnight last night. It was the first crackup over the holiday period.

State Laboratory Workers Organize

Form Association To Aid Technique

An organization of laboratory workers in public health and medical laboratories in the state has recently been effected under the title of the Maryland Association of Medical and Public Health Laboratories.

The association will collaborate with official agencies in the development of effective routine laboratory procedure. Membership is open to all who are either directly or indirectly engaged in such work in the state.

The executive council of the association is composed of the president, Edward F. Gummell, of Silver Spring; the vice-president, Dr. A. A. Pearre, of Frederick; Miss Florence R. Hill, of Laurel, secretary-treasurer; and Dr. Harry Eagle, of Baltimore, and Dr. Ira Darling, of Sykesville.

Burglar Gets His Annual Wardrobe

Pocomoke City, Md., July 3 (AP)—Police here might ruefully opine that the beau brummel burglar, their annual pain in the neck, is awfully hard on his clothes—he evidently wore out 50 suits in a year.

The day before July 4, 1938, the beau broke into a department store (Montgomery, Ward) and outfitted himself in 50 pairs of ice cream pants, plus $1,500 worth of ties, straw hats, shirts and sundry articles of women's wear.

But styles must have changed, or beau was dissatisfied with "those old things," or something. Anyway, the day before July 4, 1939, the beau brummell burglar broke into the same store in the same fashion and stole $1,500 worth of suits, straw hats, ties and a like quantity of women's wear.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

We are prone to speak of the good old days when Americans were hemen and she-women and blazed trails through the wilderness to the promised lands.

They were great people, but, brother, just take a look around today. America is still a land full of vitality. And today all America is on the move, hurrying somewhere to play, to rest, to work at keeping others playing.

Americans have just as much get-up and go as they ever had. The pioneers had only one way to go—westward— and they went. Many Americans today don't know just what to do with the power, the energy, the education, and the time they have on their hands. But they are still a people raring to go.

Take a look around Allegany county today. See the baseball games, the husky maidens knocking softballs all around the lots, the fishermen wading through the riffles, the swimmers, the sun-worshipers, the picnickers, the Celanese workers rallying at their big union picnic, LaSalle students old and young reunioning at Minkes, happy families cleaning out over-stuffed picnic baskets, cars racing and chasing, irrespressible youngsters and grown-up kids banging fireworks, motorcycles roaring about with the driver's best girl holding on tight on the rear fender, the Stars and Stripes flying over hundreds of river cottages and pup tents.

Also thousands of people having fun in Constitution Park, hot dog vendors blessing America, filling stations busy, stories of disaster beginning to roll in, girls in shorts here, there and everywhere, kids with ice cream cones smeared all over them, proud papas carving up water melons, lusty fellows downing cold beer, speeches here and there where people can't avoid them, swing music from creaking old phonographs and new portable radios, jitterbugs dancing in hot, stuffy roadhouses, the brothers of the lodge on a fraternal outing.

In other words, the American people having themselves a time.

If you think America has gone sissy, just get out and see. America may go haywire, but hardly sissy.

Woman Arrested Selling Magazines

Ruby Lee Hall, of the Olympia hotel, was released under $5 bond yesterday morning after being arrested by Sergt. Raymond R. Johnston on charges of soliciting magazine subscriptions without a permit.

She is scheduled to be given a hearing tomorrow in Police court.

WPA Worker in New Car Scares Cops, Chases Pedestrians off Sidewalks

A young WPA worker taking his wife for a spin in a shiny new car last night gave downtown pedestrians, police and firemen a real Fourth of July thrill show, with a wild chase thrown in for an encore.

The show started, police said, when Frank L. Laber, 24, of Eckhart, came whizzing around the corner from Mechanic street into Frederick street at sixty miles an hour.

The car leaped the sidewalk, headed for the plate glass window of Zinn's restaurant. Pedestrians leaped for their lives, several narrowly escaping.

Firemen Scatter

The driver managed to miss the building by inches, and zoomed on up the street. Firemen enjoying a quiet smoke before going to bed scattered as the wild auto whizzed by and almost took the corner off Central fire station.

The car went onto the pavement again on Centre street, according to Officer Curtis M. Kime, who gave chase on his motorcycle and finally got the driver to the curb after a race up Centre street, Bedford street, and Polk street.

"It beats any driving I ever saw in or out of Cumberland," said Sergt. Bert B. Browne, his face pale. "I thought sure he was going through that restaurant window."

Diners in the restaurant tried to take up where they had left off when the headlights flashed in their faces, but their appetites were gone.

"It's a miracle no one was killed," said Assistant Chief John J. Trieber as he lingered through the code books to see how many things he could charge the WPA worker with.

The assistant chief did a pretty thorough job of it. Laber was charged with endangering the lives of pedestrians, careless driving, failure to stop at any number of stop signs, and exceeding the speed limit.

Police Mystified

Police examined him thoroughly and searched the car, but could find no evidence that the driver had been drinking.

That was what mystified everyone.

His wife could shed no light on the mystery of the wild ride. "Everything happened so quick," was all police got from her.

The scare occurred about 8:30. Laber was released later after his father posted $200 bond for his appearance for a hearing tomorrow.

Deaths

Dr. David W. Smouse

Dr. David W. Smouse, a native of Allegany county, died Sunday at his home in Long Beach, Cal. He was 87.

Dr. Smouse was born at Hazen. He was a son of the late John L. Smouse.

After being educated as a physician, Dr. Smouse went to De Moines, Iowa, where he established a private hospital. His holdings were valued at $5,000,000 at one time, but he gave away a large part of his fortune, including a general hospital and a children's hospital.

Surviving are a brother, Reese Smouse, of Iowa, and a sister, Mrs. Gladys Todd, with whom he resided. William H. Smouse of the Baltimore Pike, and Charles A. Smouse of Bedford road, are first cousins.

Eleven Tragic Deaths in Maryland Usher in Fourth of July Holiday

(By The Associated Press)

Marylanders launched today into a gala celebration of the Fourth of July, climaxing the long holiday with public ceremonies, fireworks displays, picnics and outings.

Throughout the Free State, one of the original thirteen colonies that broke asunder from the mother country in the revolution, Independence Day was a holiday with aspects both tragic and gay.

Even before the "Glorious Fourth" had dawned, eleven lives had been lost as a result of heavy traffic and crowded beaches. Six persons were drowned and five killed in motor crashes Saturday and Sunday.

Curb on Fireworks

To further a "safe and sane" observance of the Fourth, most communities either clamped down strictly on the sale and shooting of fireworks or had controlled displays.

Dr. Robert H. Riley, director of the state department of health, led the long list of public officials urging care and caution in the handling of fireworks. He pointed out Maryland had two killed and 306 injured by fireworks last year.

Mayor Arthur W. Boyce of Salisbury urged Salisburians to refrain from shooting fireworks and attend instead the public display arranged for tonight in the municipal park.

An all-day program of recreation and entertainment was planned for the Salisbury celebration, a feature of which was a beauty contest at which four "Miss Delmarvas", ranging in age from one year to eighty-five, were to be selected.

Frederick Plans Display

Frederick forbade shooting of fireworks except on the Fourth itself and arranged a huge display for tonight in Baker park. In nearby Brunswick the Steadman-Keenan American Legion post planned an all-day program in city park, climaxed with pyrotechnics.

Hagerstown and Annapolis looked forward to a quiet holiday, with no official fireworks displays. All county, city and state offices were closed, giving employes a welcome rest.

The Cambridge Yacht club took the leading part in the celebration there, with a program of sailing races and an extension fireworks exhibition. A baseball game was also scheduled.

Baltimore listed ten separate celebrations, featured by a pageant, band concert and fireworks at municipal stadium under sponsorship of the greater northeast Baltimore Association.

New Declaration Of Tolerance To Be Broadcast

City Fathers Given Copy of Document To Be Read Today

Mayor Harry Irvine and the members of City Council have reveived a copy of the "American Declaration of Tolerance and Equality" initiated by Editor William Allen White, Senator W. Warren Barbour and George Gordon Battle.

The declaration was conceived as a part of a July 4th program and is a ringing affirmation of the American tradition of equality of all men. The declaration was signed by the respective governors of the 48 states, including Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, of Maryland.

The declaration follows:

This has ever been a free country. It was founded by men and women who fled from persecution and oppression; it was founded upon religious liberty and human equality. The signers of the Declaration of Independence built their hopes for America on these principles. Succeeding generations have cherished them. They are the most precious heritage of the American people.

In 1776, these principles were embodied in the Declaration of Independence. In 1789 they were written into the Constitution and into the Bill of Rights; George Washington, as the first president of the United States, swore to defend them; Abraham Lincoln upheld them in the Emancipation Proclamation.

Today these principles of fredom for all are threatened. Our American institutions are attacked by those who would destroy liberty through bigotry. They assail the equal justice guaranteed by our Constitution and seek to set race against race, creed against creed.

Now, therefore, on this Fourth day of July, 1939, we Americans, assembled throughout the United States, again take the oath of our forefathers. Descended from those who came from all lands to live here in peace and brotherhood, we who together have made America great, repudiate all doctrines of inequality, and condemn intolerence in every form. We reaffirm our devoted loyalty to the basic principal of the Declaration of Independence, that all men are created equal, and in defense of this we, as did the founders of these United States of America, mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor."

Today, at 3:45 p. m., keystone ceremonies conducted simultaneously at the World's Fair and the San Francisco Fair will be broadcast to the nation.

At that time, Raymond Massey, star of the Broadway production, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," will read the declaration already quoted above.

Other celebrities who will take part in the ceremonies are Dr. Walter Damrosch, celebrated conductor; Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Vermont author; Paul Muni, Hollywood and Broadway star; and Marc Connelly, noted Broadway producer.

A poster advertising the program was painted by Artist McClelland Barclay, and Katherine Hepburn, the actress, posed for it.

Two brand new songs have been written especially for the occasion by Harold Rome, who composed "Franklin D. Roosevelt Jones," and by Gilbert Patten, author of the famous Frank Merriwell books.

RETURN OF TARZAN—Billy Bartlett, 11, went out yesterday to play cowboy on Campobello, ended up by playing Tarzan on a cable swing out over the cliff. After the doctor fixed him up he was content to sit quietly in an easy chair. Story below.—News Staff Photo.

Cowboy, 11, Tries Playing Tarzan, Swings through Air, Breaks 3 Ribs

"Cowboy" Billy Bartlett took a bad tumble yesterday afternoon and it wasn't from a horse.

Billy, a blond-headed, 11-year-old Pear street youngster, strapped his trusty six shooter to his belt yesterday afternoon, and sashayed forth to hunt rustlers with his sidekick, Leroy Stickley, 13, of 600 North Centre street.

Bobbie Jean Rohman, 9, also of Centre street, tagged along to help round up the rustlers, since she was tired of playing with the girls anyway.

The trio proceeded to the Cumberland Contracting Company and from there to a ledge near the Allegany High School.

Tries a Swing

Coming upon a cable that swung out over a 100 foot embankment the cowboys and cowgirl paused en route for a brief inspection. There was really nothing for the two cowboys to do but take a few swings on that cable.

Leroy went first. Then Billy wrapped a piece of newspaper around the cable to keep from blistering his hands and swung out.

After one good swing he gained momentum and soared out over the bank with a swoop. Then the paper slipped and so did Billy.

Sails Thirty Feet

Thirty feet through the air he sailed—outward and downward. He landed on his head and chest, plowing into the gravelly bank, missing a sharp stump by inches. Broken bottles and sharp pieces of glass lay everywhere around, but he missed them, too.

He kept right on rolling down the bank after he hit, crashing through the locust sprouts and underbrush.

Leroy and Bobbie ran to his assistance and without any fuss loaded the injured youth onto Leroy's shoulders and started for home with Bobbie helping to hold him up.

"He was hurt mighty bad but didn't say nothin'" Leroy recalled later after toting his friend to their own neighborhood where Mrs. G. C. Slavin, a friend of the Bartletts', was called.

Three Broken Ribs

She called a doctor who finally announced that the sum total of Billy's injuries amounted to three broken ribs, a fractured left arm, and cuts on the head and chest.

Meanwhile, Billy's mother, Mrs. Ethel P. Bartlett, was called from the Celanese plant, where she had reported only a short time before for the 3 p. m. shift.

She hurried to her home at 8 Pear street and found Billy wellwrapped in bandages and adhesive tape. Later, Billie's two older sisters, Willa Mae and Ruth Lee Bartlett arrived home to ply their brother with questions concerning his tumble.

Didn't Cry

Asked if he cried, Billy said, "Naw, I just snuffled a little."

"He was a mighty plucky boy," Mrs. Slavin observed. "They had to carry him a long ways and he was pretty well cracked up."

Asked if nine-year-old Bobbie had helped much in getting him home, Billy observed, "Shucks, she was better than lots of the boys around here."

All the kids in the neighborhood dropped around at Billy's house yesterday afternoon to look the victim over.

John L. Lewis, who arrived last night in Cumberland. Whether he will speak at the Celanese union picnic today was not known.

John L. Lewis Sleeps in City; On Motor Trip

'Passing Through', Says CIO Chief Invited To Speak

John L. Lewis, chief of the C gress of International Organizat arrived in Cumberland last n on the eve of the Fourth of picnic of the Celanese union.

Mr. Lewis, accompanied by wife, drove up in front of the Al quin Hotel at ten minutes of and was immediately recognized Harry Brooks, porter at the h who hurried inside to spread word.

Mr. Lewis signed the hotel reg for both himself and his wife, a which they immediately went their room.

"Just Passing Through"

Called by reporters, Mr. Le said that he was "just pass through town and didn't have a thing to say."

Speculation was rife on Ba more street last night as to whet the CIO chief would address vast throng expected at Fairgo day for the Celanese union picni

It was recalled that Harold M gruder, chairman of the pic committee, had invited Mr. Le to speak at the annual affair sev al weeks ago. None of the Celan union officials could be reached night.

Desk Clark Don Lees, at the gonquin Hotel, admitted that was surprised when Mr. Lewis wal ed into the hotel lobby.

Lees said Mr. Lewis started to a newspaper and then decided to when Mrs. Lewis said she did care to see a paper.

Mr. Lewis was attired in a Pa ama hat, dark coat, and light trou ers, Lees said. He couldn't remem ber what Mrs. Lewis was wearing said.

Although a number of peo seemed certain last night that M Lewis would address the crowd e pected at Fairgo today, it was n ticed that none of the local un officials were on hand when th CIO chief arrived in town.

When several Cumberland un officials called the hotel and ask to speak to Fr. Lewis they were i formed by the desk clerk that h had gone to bed and left orders n to be disturbed.
